Nixon Praises Austria's Action

VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 20 (AP)—Vice President Nixon assured Austrian government leaders at a state banquet tonight the U.S. government would help as much as possible to relieve the country of its burden of Hungarian refugees.

Nixon praised Austrians for "giving the refugees something money cannot buy—love, understanding and help which are so important to them."

The vice president did not specify what aid the United States would give. And Chancellor Julius Raab said at the banquet that since the refugees still are streaming into Austria his government still does not know the scope of the help it will need.

Earlier Nixon had discussed the Hungarian refugee problem with everyone he met—from Austria's President Theodor Koerner to a legless youth who had just escaped across the border.

Figures
By the end of the year 21,500 are due to get there, but Nixon wants more to be admitted. More than 70,000 of the 150,000 refugees who have fled since the revolt against Russian rule are still in little Austria.

William P. Rogers, U. S. Deputy attorney general, said after a day of talking to refugees with Nixon: "We have a tremendous job to do in the United States to see that these people who come to us are properly taken care of. It's not only the humanitarian thing to do, it's what will serve our long-range interests best."

Nixon's visit to the camps ended for the day with a children's Christmas party at Traiskirchen, south of Vienna, one of the biggest of the refugee shelters. He handed out gifts from Santa Claus, praised the Christmas play and sat down to the piano for a rendition of "Jingle Bells." Americans in the party joined in singing it.

In response, the Hungarian audience rose and sang the solemn Hungarian anthem.

Nixon began the day with a formal visit to 83-year-old President Koerner. He brought a letter from President Eisenhower praising Austria's care of the refugees, and an autographed photo of the President. He also saw Chancellor Julius Raab and other top Austrian officials.

The vice president's car went all the way to Andau, a village at the easternmost tip of Austria where the bulk of the refugees have been coming through. The frontier is only two miles away.

Nixon went first to Andau's dance hall, now a Red Cross center with multicolored crepe paper streamers still hanging from the rafters. There tens of thousands of refugees have had their first taste of the free world's hospitality—soup and beds of straw.

Hundreds of refugees crowded around the vice president and he had a few words and a handshake for as many as he could reach.

TYRONE, Pa., Dec. 20 (AP)—Allden Roach, president of the Columbia-Geneva steel division of U. S. Steel Corp., was killed tonight in the fiery mountainside crash of a corporation twin-engine plane near here.

Medical Director Of Hoxsey Cancer Clinic Denied Permission For In-Patient Hospital

HARRISBURG, Dec. 20 (AP)—Newton C. Allen, medical director of the Hoxsey Cancer Clinic at Portage, today was denied a license for an in-patient hospital at the clinic.

Secretary of Welfare Harry Shapiro indicated that the ruling, made by the state Bureau of Hospitals, was based in part on successful court action by the government against pills seized in 1955.

Scotland Yard Orders Bodies Recovered

EASTBOURNE, England, Dec. 20 (AP)—Scotland Yard's murder squad tonight ordered gravediggers to exhume the bodies of two rich old ladies in lonely cemeteries near this Victorian seaside town.

The directive went out after a magistrate's court set Jan. 14 for the trial of Dr. John Bodkin Adams on charges of murdering a wealthy patient, 81-year-old Mrs. Edith Morrell, a widow, six years ago.

A detective testified in court that Dr. Adams on being charged replied: "Murder? Can you prove it was murder? I did not think you could prove murder. She was dying in any event."

Scotland Yard detectives said the exhumations were connected with their investigation of Dr. Adams, a highly respected 57-year-old bachelor physician whose patients include many aged and wealthy people.

Before Dawn
The exhumations were to take place just before dawn.

The bodies for which coroner A. C. Sommerville ordered the exhumations were those of:

Mrs. Julia Bradnam, an 85-year-old widow who died on May 27, 1952, and Miss Clara Neil Miller, who died at the age of 86 in February last year.

They were reported to have been Dr. Adams' patients.

Detectives examined more than 300 wills of Eastbourne's dead before they arrested Dr. Adams.

The physician was taken to London's gloomy Brixton Jail to await trial.

Detective Supt. Herbert Hannam, known as Scotland Yard's "gentleman detective," made the arrest.

Three Projects Set To Begin

HARRISBURG, Dec. 20 (AP)—Three major highway projects in Pennsylvania are expected to start early in the new year, the Department of Highways said today.

They are the Erie freeway to connect the Ohio and New York turnpikes, the Fort Pitt Tunnel connecting Pittsburgh's new Fort Pitt Bridge with the Penn-Lincoln Parkway, and the final section of U. S. Route 22 between Harrisburg and Easton.

A federal jury in Pittsburgh has ruled the government had the right to seize half a million pills, on the ground they were misbranded as effective against cancer and shipped in interstate commerce.

Permit
The government is now seeking permission to destroy the pills and the clinic has asked for a new trial.

Ira J. Mills, director of the Bureau of Hospitals, said today's ruling would not affect present clinic operations.

"A clinic is an out-patient organization and not covered by state licensing regulations. A hospital is an in-patient organization and must be licensed," Mills said.

"Apparently the business at the clinic grew to such proportions that the organization thought they needed a hospital to provide in-patient treatment," he added.

Refugees Reveal Meaning Of Christmas

By Leonard Randolph
"THIS FLIGHT from a crumbling land into the freedom of our world is the greatest story we can tell today. It needs to be told again and again."

Those are the words of Capt. David Cartwright, 33. Dave is an airline pilot. He returned yesterday from a flight which brought 74 Hungarian refugees to America.

In many ways, Capt. Cartwright feels, nothing in modern life has come closer, at least in recent days, to the meaning of Christmas.

"On the flight over here from Munich, we had a sudden, impromptu Christmas party for the refugees. It was one of the most wonderful things I've ever seen," he said yesterday.

"Until then all 74 of them had been tired and afraid and were like people who had seen so many doors close they never shut up inside themselves. They expected to see one open again."

"But the party changed all that. You could see them open up, their eyes widening, most of them filled with tears. It was like watching a man coming to life again, surrounded by ashes but sure, for the first time in days that he was no longer alone."

For David C. (for Churchill) Cartwright, the business of flying refugees is not exactly new. Yet this experience proved stronger to him than many that have happened before.

Dave is a native of Yakima, Wash. His family came to Monroe County when he was five; he attended Smithfield School; graduated from East Stroudsburg High School. Before he enlisted in the Air Force during World War Two, he had enrolled at the University of Washington in Seattle.

He spent most of World War Two in the European Theater as a combat glider pilot. Out of the Air Force he was instructed at Port Jervis, N. Y., to get enough time to qualify for a transport license; then went to work as a co-pilot for Trans-Caribbean Airlines.

The job: flying displaced persons from Munich to their new home in Israel. "They were hopelessly lost men and women, shadowed by the constant thought of what they had gone through. Life had lost its meaning for most of them. In Israel I hope it came back to them. I hope it has."

He married the former Carol Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Harrison, Minisink Hills, in Rome on March 13, 1949. After that he returned to the U. S., eventually went to work for Slick Airways Inc., Texas, for which he now flies. Slick has a charter service in addition to its nationwide scheduled freight lines.

The company now has six or eight four-engine Douglas planes chartered to their Air Transport Service flying to Europe or to Japan. This month Dave was ordered to make his first overseas flight in quite awhile. It was the flight to Munich. The job: picking up "loads" of displaced persons.

It was part of "Operation Safe Haven," a label handed to it as part of traditional Army terminology. The U. S. base of operations was the McGuire AFB.

Dave stayed in Munich three days. He and other pilots found, when they got there, that connections between Vienna and Munich had been disrupted. Refugees are now being brought to Munich by train rather than plane.

There were airline pilots in Munich from most of the free nations of the world. They all had one assignment: To help Hungarian escapees start new lives. The story they began to piece together, from refugees and from the newspaper correspondents who swarmed in and through the hotel, seems destined to become one of the major chapters in the history of our time.

"The Russians have a cordon of tanks all along the Hungarian border, you know," Dave said. "But many of the Russian soldiers are sympathetic to the Hungarians who are trying to cross the border. Sometimes, even though they may see them, they will let them slip by."

"It's easiest, of course, to cross the border at night. The soldiers shoot up parachute flares and try to keep them back, but that's about all."

"In the hotel where we stayed in Munich, it was almost like a Correspondents' Club during a war. I stood in the lobby one day and heard a man with a big, booming voice holding the whole room at rapt attention. The guy said: I've covered three wars but never anything like this—Yesterday I was standing there, bawling like a baby."

"The refugees come through fast. But they have a pretty good processing system. Maybe it's even super-efficient, because some of them don't even know where they're going."

"One reporter talked to some refugees and they were terrified. They thought they were going to a concentration camp. We had no trouble with them on (Please Turn to Page Three)

Depot Jury Adjourns For Week

Ike, Nehru Announce 'Agreement'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru and President Eisenhower climaxed their four days of talks today by announcing a "broad area of agreement" and "greater understanding."

That was the gist of a formal communique issued on their behalf as the Prime Minister boarded Eisenhower's personal plane, Columbine III, and flew to New York. From there he will go to Ottawa for the weekend and then to London on his way back to India.

The 67-year-old Indian leader began his talks with Eisenhower last Sunday, continued them for more than 12 hours Monday at Eisenhower's Gettysburg farm and wound them up yesterday. Exactly what they discussed has been one of Washington's best-kept secrets thus far.

Official sources insisted no specific agreements were reached. But from the American viewpoint the big accomplishment seemed to be the attitude that Nehru disclosed at a news conference yesterday: that U. S. policy "is not as rigid as I thought."

From the Indian viewpoint, the big gain seemed to be what Nehru called a greater understanding and, possibly some appreciation of India's policy of neutrality in the cold war between Russia and the Western Allies.

Happy Mood

Diplomats of both countries were quick to hail the Eisenhower-Nehru talks as possibly the beginning of a new U.S.-India relationship. As the official communique put it:

"The talks confirmed the broad area of agreement between India and the United States, which are bound together in strong ties of friendship deriving from their common objectives and their adherence to the highest principles of free democracy. The principles and policies of the governments of India and the United States have evolved on the basis of respect for the dignity of man and of the need to improve the welfare of the individual."

"The Prime Minister and the President are convinced that the greater understanding of their respective policies reached at these talks will facilitate the constant efforts of India and the United States toward the achievement of peaceful and friendly intercourse among nations in accordance with the principles of the United Nations."

Support For Mollet

PARIS, Dec. 20 (AP)—The French National Assembly tonight wound up its three-day foreign policy debate by backing the action of the Socialist-led government of Guy Mollet by a vote of 332 to 213.

Green Asked To Step Out Of Politics

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20 (AP)—A North Philadelphia Democratic committeeman has urged Congressman William Green to step out of politics until federal indictments against Green are settled.

Stanley Kubacki, a former assistant district attorney, urged Green to give up his city committee chairmanship, his post as leader of the 33d Ward and to refrain from taking his congressional seat for the time being.

John F. Byrne, Democratic leader of Kubacki's ward, said the committeeman "suffers from a big head" and is "grossly ungrateful." He said Kubacki is disgruntled because he has not been given a political job.

Byrne said the charges against Green were politically motivated.

Green was indicted by a federal grand jury at Scranton last week on charges he used his influence as a member of the House Armed Services Committee in behalf of contractors at the Tobyhanna, Pa. Army Signal Corps Depot.

Kubacki said he had sent 300 letters to committeemen urging that if Green refuses to step out to "write to the House Administration Committee and ask that he not be seated."

To which Byrne retorted: "Our committeemen have great confidence in Congressman Green. Bill Green, a fighting liberal with a fine voting record in the best traditions of the Democratic Party in the United States Congress, has been a real inspiration to our committeemen during many elections, including the last one on November 6."

Police Capture Kidnaper, Accomplice

DENVER, Dec. 20 (AP)—Police today captured a mental hospital fugitive and his abducted teenage bride, and after an all-day search seized a scar-faced Indian as an accomplice.

Mike Wiegner, 16, an escaped inmate of Napa (Calif.) State Hospital, and his wife, Clo Ann Mowatt Wiegner, 17, of Daly City, Calif., both were injured when the stolen car in which they were riding crashed during a police chase through Denver streets before dawn.

A 35-year-old Sioux, Jesse Eastman, alias Red Cloud, escaped from the smashed car. He also was a fugitive from the Napa hospital.

Clo Ann's parents said the girl was forced at riflepoint to accompany Wiegner and Eastman when they fled from Daly City Monday. Late this afternoon, police spotted Eastman driving eastward on the outskirts of Denver in another stolen car. He offered no resistance when his car was halted.

Charge
Eastman has been charged by the FBI in San Francisco with unlawful flight. Police said he had been under treatment at Napa hospital as an alcoholic with "suicidal tendencies."

In Denver General Hospital tonight, Wiegner and Clo Ann vowed their love for each other.

Wiegner asked detectives to "give my wife a personal message. Tell her, 'I still love you darling.'"

Clo Ann replied, "You tell him I still love him, too."

O'Connor Not Guilty

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Author Harvey O'Connor's contempt of Congress conviction was voided today by the U. S. Court of Appeals.

The court ruled a "Communist conspiracy" question put to him by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) was "so imprecise and ambiguous" that O'Connor's refusal to answer it was not a crime.

O'Connor, 59, author of books about American multimillionaires, was convicted of contempt in U. S. District Court here in November 1955.

Case
The case grew out of O'Connor's refusal to answer before the Senate Investigations subcommittee in 1953 the question "whether he was a member of the Communist conspiracy" when he wrote books bought by the State Department for use in U. S. information centers abroad. McCarthy, who asked the question, then was chairman of the subcommittee.

In reversing the conviction, the Appellate Court said O'Connor was not indicted "for refusing to say whether he was a member of the Communist party, or any other named or identifiable organization, or whether or not he had engaged in any particular activity."

Communist Officials Return Stalin Tactics To Hungary

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Communist government brought back the internment-without-trial methods of the Stalin era to Hungary today as a means of restoring the revolt-ridden economy.

A decree said "persons whose activity or behavior endangers public order, especially production," could be placed under detention for six months without trial. The prosecutor only has to issue an order on the suggestion of the police to have a person arrested. The decree said the prosecutor should investigate the case of the detained person within 30 days.

This was the same system that was used to intern thousands of Hungarians when Matyas Rakosi was the Communist boss. It was abolished when Imre Nagy became premier the first time in 1953.

Decree
The decree gave Janos Kadar's government a powerful weapon for breaking any strike—general, sitdown or slowdown. Factory workers all over the country went on a two-day strike last week when the government began arresting members of the factory workers' councils. The two leaders of the Budapest Central Workers Council who ordered the strike are still in jail.

The Communist party newspaper, Nepszabadsag, this week strongly assailed sitdown strikers who report to their factories each day and collect wages but produce nothing.

The paper also declared the crucial problem was the coal and power shortage which prevents the wheels from turning. For weeks miners have been on strike. Thousands of them fled to the West, or vanished into the countryside, when the Oct. 23 revolt began. Now the country is estimated to be three to four months short in its coal supply. Worse, the shafts are in such bad shape from neglect that it would take 30 days to get many of them back in production if all the miners came back to work tomorrow.

It said a public hearing would be held, with the date to be announced soon.

In New York, Paul C. Smith, president and board chairman of Crowell & Collier, said the officers of the publishing company were cooperating in the SEC investigation, and added:

"We are confident the investigation will disclose nothing unfavorable to the company."

Reason
Crowell & Collier, among other things, published the magazines Woman's Home Companion and Collier's. Directors of the firm decided last Friday to discontinue these magazines, the last issues of which appeared today.

The SEC said its investigation will be to determine whether the company violated the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 by failing to comply with the registration and full disclosure provisions governing stock issues.

SEC said the firm in 1955 and 1956 issued four million dollars worth of debentures which could be exchanged for common stock.

He mentioned the "two tragedies, or call them what you will, in Egypt and Hungary."

Think Twice
"Nations have to think twice before they enrage the conscience of the world," the Indian Prime Minister added.

Nehru originally was scheduled to address only delegation heads in a small conference room. Plans were changed to accommodate all of the delegates who wished to hear him.

Tax Program Centered On Sales Levy

HARRISBURG, Dec. 20 (AP)—A 250 million dollar tax program, centered on keeping the sales tax at three per cent, was proposed today as the bipartisan answer to the commonwealth's tax dilemma.

Gov. Leader's 12-member tax state labor and industry leaders—came up with a five-part plan to balance the 1957-59 budget.

The committee said it preferred the sales tax, despite its drawbacks, to a personal income tax. Its unanimous recommendations called for:

1. Retaining the three per cent sales tax for the commonwealth's two-year fiscal period starting June 1.

Unless the Legislature acts, the rate automatically falls to two per cent on that date. The yield would be 446 millions, an additional 149 millions over the current biennium.

2. Reviving the cent a bottle tax on soft drinks and a half cent per ounce on soft drink syrup (35 millions).

3. Imposing the sales tax on liquor and beer sold in taprooms and clubs for on-the-premises consumption (16 millions).

4. Removing the sales tax exemption for the value of trade-in allowances (28 millions).

5. Continuing the cigarette tax at its full five-cent a pack rate instead of allowing a penny of it—enacted as an emergency flood relief measure in 1956—to expire automatically June 1 (22 millions).

The committee suggested also that if further revenue were needed, the Legislature should consider extending the sales tax to clothing. This would yield 79 million dollars.

Reaction Guarded
The reaction to the program was guarded.

Gov. Leader refused to commit himself. He urged lawmakers to study the program in preparation for his budget, expected to be submitted in February or March.

"Pennsylvania has reached a point at which it can no longer afford a tax program based on partisan expediency," Leader said. Speaker-Designate W. Stuart Helm (R-Kittanning) said he agreed that the sales tax must be kept at three per cent and that the full cigarette tax should be retained.

"I don't want to make any further commitments until I read the report."

Rep. Albert S. Readinger, House Democratic floor leader who recently resigned from the committee, said he had no comment on the soft drinks tax suggestion.

The committee urged that the Legislature take no action to change the Jan. 1, 1958 effective date for the exemption of Pennsylvania manufacturers from the five-mill capital stock tax.

The Weather

Poconos—Cloudy with some rain or drizzle today diminishing by tonight but with occasional drizzle persisting tonight and Saturday in higher elevations.

Scranton—Federal grand jury which is investigating alleged corruption during the building of the $34,000,000 Army Signal Depot at Tobyhanna has interrupted its probe so its members could take a holiday recess.

They will resume their deliberations Thursday, Jan. 3, at 10 a.m., according to U. S. Attorney J. Julius Levy.

The jury has already returned indictments on five different occasions. The latest true bill was returned Wednesday to Federal Judge John W. Murphy.

It charged Lt. Col. Charles S. Tucker, 52, former resident engineer at the depot, with accepting gifts from contractors during construction of the installation.

The gifts were made for expressed purpose of influencing Col. Tucker's decisions on matters concerning the work being done or completed by the contractors, it was charged.

Named in the true bill, but not as defendants, were these contracting firms: Merritt-Chapman and Scott Corp., New York, which held the prime contract; Harris Electrical Construction Co., Scranton; John L. Bright, Pittston; John B. Kemmel, Inc., Philadelphia; Frederick Raff Co., Hartford, Conn., and Colonial Sand and Stone Co., New York.

There are six counts in the true bill, each one stating in detail the charges against the colonel.

Television
On Nov. 3, 1952, according to the indictment, Col. Tucker asked for and received from the Harris Company a 21-inch television set as well as a radio and record player combination for which the Harris firm paid $368.96.

The grand jury further charged: From Bright, Kemmel and the Keystone company, Col. Tucker asked for and received a deep freeze worth $265 on Oct. 3, 1952.

He received a 16-mm. movie projector valued at $244.50 from the Kemmel company Dec. 24, 1952.

Model train equipment worth $250 was presented to Col. Tucker by Merritt-Chapman & Scott on Dec. 15, 1952.

The Raff company gave the officer a portable phonograph valued at $85 on Jan. 2, 1953.

The last donation cited in the indictment is a "quantity of cement" which was valued at approximately $300. That came from the Colonial firm and was used to make a floor for the swimming pool at Col. Tucker's residence.

At that time, Col. and Mrs. Tucker resided in a home near South Sterling, seven miles northeast of the depot. It is understood he still owns the property.

Col. Tucker, who served in combat during World War Two and in the Korean conflict, was resident engineer at Tobyhanna during 1952 and 1953. He left the depot in December of the latter year and had been stationed with the American Battle Monument Commission in Paris, France.

The engineers had charge of building the depot. The Army Signal Corps took over the installation after it was constructed.

Burns Fatal
Second Time
BOSTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Clifford Johnson, 34, the most terribly burned survivor of the Coconut Grove nightclub fire that took 492 lives in 1942, was burned to death yesterday at Jefferson City, Mo., when his truck crashed into a ditch and caught fire.

Nearly 60 per cent of his skin surface was burned in the night spot holocaust and 45 per cent of the body had third degree burns.

Story Of 1956

Big Stories Dominate July's News

EDITOR'S NOTE—Today's story is the seventh in a series of 12 articles to be written by Leonard Randolph. Each story will deal with one month of 1956. The articles will appear from time-to-time for the balance of the year.

By Leonard Randolph
T-MEN FOUND a still on a Boy Scout reservation in Pike County. Ronson workers went back to their jobs for the first time in seven weeks.

A baby made history at Tobyhanna Signal Depot. At Stokes Mill, part of the old King Bros. Circus struggled through its final death throes.

These were major events in the month of July—a month which, by news standards, kept us hopping from the upper strata of government to the gently humorous happenings of an ordinary world.

We had more than our share of "freak accidents." The month started off with one that could have been fatal—but wasn't. Alfred A. Hoffman, 21, of Pennell, Pa., fell asleep at the wheel of his car on Milford Crossing, police said. Hoffman awoke in time to see the one-eyed monster approaching on the track (it was only a train) belching huge clouds of steam and such. Hoffman took off, left his car there. The train demolished the car. Hoffman was unhurt.

By far the most memorably gruesome story of the year came on the 10th. Larry Batzel, 18, Canadensis, was driving a car on Route 611. He had his left forearm out the window. A tractor-trailer and Batzel's car came within inches of each other. Batzel's arm was ripped off. He was taken to General Hospital by a friend in his own car; walked calmly in and was given emergency treatment by Dr. Claus Jordan. A picture we ran on our front page, showing the dismembered hand lying in the middle of the highway, caused a lot of comment, pro and con during succeeding weeks. But we thought we noticed a lot less arms sticking out of car windows on local roads for a while.

Election
July was election month for several local groups. Dr. S. F. Sullivan was named chairman of the Stroudsburg Parking Authority. Pocono Mountain Joint School Board elected Harry Drennan as its first president; gave other offices to Anthony Bolyn, Dr. Edward T. Horn Jr. and William Marsh, vice president; David Neilson, secretary and John Plevyak, treasurer. Robert Frailey, Pocono Township, became president of the Monroe County Board of School Directors and Clyde Dietrich, Chestnut Hill, and Herbert Young, Lehman Township, president of East Stroudsburg Area Jointure, were new members.

Up at Tobyhanna Signal Depot, a young man named David Ironside came proudly into the world. He established a couple of precedents on the way. It was something of a surprise to Pop and Mom, too. They weren't expecting David to come along for a couple of days. Pop (J. Robert Ironside Jr.) was on duty for the Depot at the New York Port of Embarkation when Mom (the former Patricia Ann Kearns) had to go to the maternity ward. There was only one hitch: There wasn't time enough to get to a hospital. Mrs. Ironside was rushed to the Depot dispensary at 9:30 a.m. where David was born 25 minutes later. Dr. Donald J. Werner, the man in charge, mopped his brow when it was finished and the nurse put young David in the top drawer of a nearby desk. He was the first baby ever born in the Depot. And he was undoubtedly the first baby in the history of the Signal Corps to have his name entered, officially, on the Morning Report for that day—July 2, 1956.

For many years Monroe County had had a blood donor program and a record of which it could be justifiably proud. Lately, things had slipped into low gear. Officials began to fear that, unless things changed, they might slip into no gear. LeRoy Mikels, county chairman, told local residents that the program was "at the crossroads" and unless something happened, it might have to be abandoned. On the 13th, residents arrived at the crossroads and took a sharp left turn—the Bloodmobile failed by 51 pints to make its 125-pint monthly quota.

Monroe County Tuberculosis and Health Society started its annual drive to give free chest x-rays to all food handlers and it was highly successful. Stroudsburg Council went on record approving the proposed site for 28 housing units off W. Main St. East Stroudsburg Area Jointure held its first meeting under the district-delegate system it had agreed upon at its inception. With this system, the joint board was made up of four delegates from East Stroudsburg and one each from the five others. It went into effect at the end of the first year's operation.

Boy Scouts
The night of July 4 was a particularly rainy night. In the middle of the driving rain a call came through that 10 Boy Scouts were "trapped" up on top of Mount Tammany or Tamaoni in the Indian Head area. The boys had been sighted by a passing motorist whose car had snacked into a large-size rock which had tumbled down from their heights. He called police, Scout officials, etc.; they called the CD and firemen and (Please turn to Page Five)

Council Asks Solicitor To Prepare New Manager Ordinance

Presentation Directed For January

STROUDSBURG Solicitor George T. Robinson last night was directed by the borough council to prepare an ordinance establishing the council-manager system of municipal government.

The lawmakers directed that the ordinance should be ready for presentation at their January meeting.

Council met with Robinson as a committee-of-the-whole last night to discuss a model ordinance relative to the borough manager plan of operation.

During the discussion, Robinson noted that the manager would have nothing to do with the police department unless the burgess should delegate such powers to him. The borough code places the burgess at head of that department.

Restrictions
Moreover, the solicitor pointed out, the manager would be restricted by the same limitations placed on the borough council regarding such matters as the awarding of contracts.

If the system was adopted, it was observed, the manager would be in charge of hiring and firing of personnel in all departments other than police.

Council President Edward R. Lawson noted that if the manager was "high-handed" in his hiring and firing practices, the "only recourse would be to fire the manager."

It was further observed that in a council-manager set-up, the council does not relinquish any of its powers, and that it still controls the purse-strings of the borough.

Borough Secretary Harold Snyder, the probable choice of council for manager, would be given legal standing to do things he now does for the borough in his present position, it was also pointed out.

If the ordinance is adopted by council and approved by the mayor, then council would have to formally appoint a manager and adopt another ordinance establishing his salary.

Minisink Hills Pilot Relates Story Of Flight From Europe With 74 Hungarian Refugees

the plane. Someone had explained to them. They all knew they were coming to America.

"We had a pretty big load. There were 74 people—men, women and children. And they had only 114 pounds of baggage among them. Our crew numbers seven men and women. And we had between six and seven hundred pounds of luggage. That really brought a point home to me and to the rest of us."

"Part of the airlift cost is being paid by the Germans to trim down their reparations (wartime) payments. We had four or five families and about 10 young people who were alone, all under 20. Almost 90 percent of them were coming to America to join relatives or friends who had been contacted and were sponsoring them."

"I think we were lucky on the plane. We had a couple of the best stewardesses you could find—real old-time airline gals who knew all the little things that can make people forget about flying and the plane. They went shopping, all on their own, for a miniature Christmas tree and some ornaments. They got candy and things for the kids."

"Just before we left Munich that night, our chief navigator got himself a beret and trimmed it with tinsel. We put a flashlight under the Christmas tree. The navigator made himself a beard out of tissue paper, cutting it in strips and letting it hang down from his chin—it didn't look much like whiskers, but it was fine."

"Then we began singing Christmas songs and carols to them. None of the Hungarians knew much of our language. And we didn't know anything about theirs. But somehow we got through. The songs were the same, or at least some of them were."

"You could see the change come over them. Before their faces had stayed calm, frozen, waiting, uncertain and sad. We watched them, and suddenly I think everyone felt like crying. The people got up from their seats, tears streaming from most of their eyes. But they had started to smile, too, and that made all the difference."

"Then a little later, they sang

Christmas songs in Hungarian and we listened to them. The change had been made and the whole trip was better because of that."

"One of the men could speak a little English. He wanted to express their appreciation to all of us, but he couldn't quite get it out. So he and one of the stewardesses tried to work out a way to talk together. Pretty soon all of the rest were crowded around the girl. They kept working on the two languages for two or three hours."

"We had a good, quiet trip. But when we got to Gander, Newfoundland, I think some of them must have thought we were in Siberia. It was four degrees below zero."

"I had been hoping we could get to New York in broad daylight. I wanted these people to see America in plain light, right at the beginning."

"But it didn't work out that way. We got to New York in the Middle of the night. There was a very bright moon, though, and you could see nearly everything there is to see."

"I changed our course slightly and flew down the line of the Hudson. We were up high. They could see the Statue of Liberty and Broadway and the United Nations building. They have the Hungarian flag flying high there, now, and they could see that from the plane, too."

"When we landed, later, we felt as though we'd known these people for a long time. Maybe because of what we knew they'd had to face and do but mostly because they were good, sincere people."

"Our crew got off the plane first and we waited for the customs and health officials to come. When the refugees came out, they went to each one of us and all the officers, shaking hands and—most of them—crying."

"One of the little boys asked the stewardess: "Is it proper to cry?"

"She told him: 'No—because if you do, I'll break down and start crying, too.'"

For Capt. Dave Cartwright, this "airlift" has been one of the most moving experiences in his life. "I think it's a wonderful thing. I think we ought to extend ourselves even more than we have. This country is one of a few that has a quota at all. Most of the other countries will take as many as they can get."

Right now Dave and Carol—and their three children—have their own Christmas at home to think about.

Yesterday, with only three hours sleep in three days, the flight from Munich was still upmost in Dave's mind. Somehow, he said, he couldn't quite get the vision of these 74 people out of his mind.

It was almost like making a flight from a dark world into the light. It was because of the sunlight and the beauty of your own world that the darkness took on so much meaning.

And—thanks to the eyes of men and women who had needed him and his country—the whole idea of flight seemed to have taken on a new dimension for David.

Part of it had happened years before, in another country.

E. S. Police Still Search For Gunman

EAST Stroudsburg police continued their search yesterday for the gunman who pushed his way into an apartment and took $800 in cash and jewelry from two women.

The robbery occurred Wednesday night at about 8:25. Robbed were Mrs. Ruth Naugle and Miss Arlene West at their apartment at 125 Center St. in East Stroudsburg.

Borough police chief Travis Seese said last night that the robber took three purses belonging to the women with him when he left the apartment. Two—a brown and a red one—belonged to Mrs. Naugle and third—a black pocketbook—belonged to Miss West, Seese said.

Shopping
The two women told the police chief Wednesday night that they had returned from Christmas shopping at about 8:15. About "10 to 15 minutes later," Mrs. Naugle answered a knock at the door.

When she opened the door the gunman pointed the weapon at her and forced his way into the apartment. The women described the man as tall, slender, well dressed, brown-haired and wearing a grey cap and overcoat.

Police Chief Seese said last night that no one had been taken into custody in the case.

Bid Accepted On Bridge Job

Stroudsburg Motorist Posts Bond On Accident Charge

A 29-YEAR-OLD Stroudsburg motorist has been arraigned on an involuntary manslaughter charge growing out of a fatal highway mishap in Stroud Township last May.

John Petrokonis, Lenape Apartments, S. Seventh St., posted $1,000 bond at his hearing on the charge before Justice of the Peace Ruth Miller, Stroud Township, Wednesday night.

Petrokonis was charged in the death of Calvin Cavanaugh, 31, of 212 N. Seventh St., who was fatally injured in a collision of a car in which he was riding and a tractor-trailer on Route 611, about a mile north of Stroudsburg.

Petrokonis, who was himself hospitalized for more than a month, was allegedly the driver of the car involved. However, he told Stroudsburg State Police he does not remember who was driving when the accident occurred.

The car hit the truck driven by C. S. Meixsell, 39, of Oxford, N. J., who was entering the highway with a load of fertilizer.

Sunday School
Sunday school and the worship service will be held at the same hours on Sunday, Dec. 30. And the combined choir will present a cantata at 7:45 p. m.

A watchnight service is scheduled for 11 p. m., New Year's Eve. The Sacrament of Holy Communion will be served.

Closing Hour Set

Seeds Of Warning Should Take Root In All Of Monroe County

Some sound words of wisdom were passed on to Monroe Countians the other day by Dr. Earl P. Strong, community development specialist at Penn State University.

One or more of his remarks fell into the category of the old cliché about being so close to the woods we can't see the trees.

Dr. Strong pointed out, for instance, that Monroe County is fortunate in that it has three types of industries, not including farming. They are: manufacturing plants, resorts and an "unusual" retail trade situation.

But he warned that all segments of the community must be united if it is to be successful in today's highly competitive drive for new industry. In short, progress will not come to the area, despite its favorable position, if each segment goes its separate way.

Dr. Strong cautioned against complacency, a smugness or satisfaction with conditions as they are. When such an attitude paralyzes the thinking of a large number of people, it divides the populace into opposing camps and stymies the efforts of others to push ahead with worthwhile projects. The net result is a steady retrogression that cannot be checked easily.

As if to give greater emphasis to his warning, Dr. Strong disclosed that, despite Monroe County's proximity to major marketing areas, his staff has become "mystified" that the county has not attracted more industries.

He further cautioned against taking the resort industry for granted and advised his listeners to be alert to the possibility the resort business will move into fringe areas of the county, or outside it altogether, at some future date.

Interdependence among all segments, rather than each group acting independently, was the main challenge left by Dr. Strong in his address. All interests in the community would do well to heed his words by linking arm in arm to lay the groundwork for an ever-prosperous Monroe County.

Nixon Assuming Greater Place Among High Echelons On Eisenhower Team

The growing role which Vice President Richard Nixon will play in the second Eisenhower administration is becoming increasingly evident.

He is now in Austria making a firsthand survey for the President on the Hungarian refugee situation and was quoted yesterday as being of the conviction that the United States should take in more refugees than the 21,500 it previously planned to accept.

His flight to Austria is one of several well calculated moves to place him in the public eye in a much bigger way than any previous vice president.

There is possibly much more than ordinary significance in the fact that Mr. Nixon recently made a major pronouncement on the question of aid to Britain and the general status of the Anglo-French-American alliance.

Endlessly during his first term, Vice President Nixon has served the nation in ceremonial capacities. Occasionally he has been employed to float trial balloons on policy for the Eisenhower administration. Seldom has he dealt so fully with matters of such great moment.

With the Vice President taking on a bigger role in spelling out of high policy, diplomats will have to attune their ears to his utterances.

Furthermore, the political effect of such a course can only be to elevate Mr. Nixon in public stature, to a point where contesting him for the 1960 GOP presidential nomination will be a difficult chore for his opponents, whoever and wherever they may be.

SITUATION NORMAL, ALL FOULED UP!

Fairly Spoken By MARGARET LATROBE

Guiding The Offspring As Wedding Attendants

Mothers have many ways of getting gray. My personal shortcut to this silvery condition is to let the kids be flower girl and ring bearer in a church wedding.

Better they should stay with their mud pies and Cub Scout projects, hearing only that dear Carolyn — their adored princess friend — was wed last Saturday to a dream gentleman named Jim. For children, that's enough wedding.

But besides knowing how to gray prematurely, mamas are to the last one, vain and foolish optimists where their brilliant and beautiful progeny are concerned. Why, certainly, little John can do his multiplication tables. But of course, wee Susy is the talk of the kindergarten set. Get her shoes on the right feet, ties bunny-bows and all. Why should they not shine resplendent in this here wedding.

The nuptials, as luck usually has it, invariably take place in some church miles distant from wherever you live. Hometown brides being too closely acquainted with hazards of having your particular brood attending the sacred vows.

Distance lends no enchantment whatsoever when fluffly or gaudy, plus the multiple array of crinolines, prescribed expensively for petal-throwers must be transported thence. Not to mention keeping a small boy's snow white suit free of grass stains and tar.

If this task can be done, one has prayed frequently and unselfishly and nightly for a lifetime. But if one has been remiss even once . . . no amount of wedding rehearsals will help.

At the hotel we thought it best to play the part straight. Having cured one facial wound to the consternation of the village medic in time for the ceremonies; having hair cuts and mosquito bites at the required unobtrusive state; having got the clothes hung in tissues against deterioration from air and fond hands — we decided to protect our fledglings even further.

We would order all meals from room service. Bright though they be, the kids didn't catch on that this cost money. As each frightened waiter placed ice-filled bowls of costly fare before them, the tots thanked him loudly for the free lunch.

Finally, minutes before the organ pealed its happy cue, came the bridal assemblage. Maids of honor, matron of honor, groom and groomsmen, corsages, bouquets, boutonnières — every item checked off except the ring bearer who had a last minute phone call to make, and the flower girl who was sobbing about having to throw away the pretty rose petals. "It will look too pretty," she howled.

But they made it down the aisle. Like angels, they looked. "Wasn't the bride a vision of loveliness?" someone said, later. Who? Oh, her. Maybe she did. Who was looking at the bride?

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

One of the best cartoons of the year was drawn by Robert Day for "Sports Illustrated." It depicts a formidable Moose nuzzling against a sign in Yellowstone Park. The sign warns "Do not feed the bears." A hand-lettered placard around the moose's neck reminds passers-by: "I AM NOT A BEAR."

Bob Sylvester heard it at a wedding reception in the Bronx. The triumphant bride shook a finger under her mother's nose and chortled: "So where would I be now if I'd taken your advice and never talked to strange men?"

The wine was flooding a Hollywood party when a starlet announced, "I'm just back from two weeks at an exclusive dude ranch."

"So we heard," drawled one of her dearest friends. "Were you a guest or just grazing?"

CUTIES

—By E. Simms Campbell

"A bottle of champagne and a thick steak. I don't like to eat hot dogs and pop on an empty stomach."

Robert S. Allen Reports

Disarmament Plan Largely Stassen's Trial Balloon

Washington, Dec. 20 — That "new Administration disarmament plan," which suddenly popped up in those front-page headlines, has quite a way to go yet before it accurately can be called this.

So far it is largely a trial balloon by White House assistant Harold Stassen.

The special adviser on disarmament was the unnamed source of the mysterious rash of fanfare reports.

He is the principal author and advocate of the far-reaching plan to reduce both weapons and combat forces, and Stassen "leaked" it at two press-radio "briefings." He held one, and an aide the other.

What they carefully did not "leak" is that Stassen's project faces two crucial hurdles:

It has yet to win President Eisenhower's approval. It's been on his desk for more than a month.

Top Defense Department officials and the Joint Chiefs of Staff are vigorously opposed to Stassen's program. These powerful objections are the primary reason for the President's stand.

Other pertinent information which Stassen didn't "leak" is: He has been circulating his Pentagon-challenged disarmament plan in diplomatic and United Nations circles for weeks; and he has discussed with Russia's UN Ambassador Arkady Sobolev.

Later Stassen told intimates the Soviet delegate "displayed eagerness to begin serious discussions."

Those two secret Stassen "briefings" are becoming increasingly frequent occurrences in Washington. More and more this method is being used to sound out official and public reaction on touchy issues.

These so-called "briefings" are on a strict "off-the-record" and "no-attribution" basis. Newsmen can attend them only if they agree to give no hint as to the source of their information. Their stories must be completely anonymous. Not even such generalizations as "Administration spokesman," "high official," or "reliable authority" can be used.

So the next time you see a front-page report on an important subject, mysteriously devoid of any name or other clue as to its source, you can pretty safely put it down as the product of one of these carefully-planned "leaks."

Why They're Anti — The National Security Council deliberated Stassen's six-point disarmament plan at a long session on November 26.

Treasury Secretary George Humphrey favored it as a highly desirable economy measure that would open the way for big cuts in military and foreign aid spending. The Ohioan is not a member of the top policy-making agency, but attends meetings at the invitation of the President.

Defense leaders voiced strong objections. They attacked both Stassen's proposals and their being offered at this particular time.

This last dissent was stressed especially by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. They contended that a sweeping disarmament program, as proposed by Stassen, would play squarely into the hands of the Kremlin rulers by enabling them to ostentatiously pose as "peace lovers" and thus divert world attention from their murderous suppression of Hungarian independence and war-mongering in the inflamed Middle East.

These powerful military arguments have been under study by the President for a month.

Also still undecided is Stassen's recommendation that the President personally submit the new disarmament program to the UN. The President did that with his dramatic "open skies" inspection proposal.

The position of Pentagon leaders was significantly summed up in a private talk by Assistant Defense Secretary Gordon Gray.

In a discussion with prominent businessmen, the former president of the University of North Carolina raised three points regarding disarmament: Whether such proposals are compatible with the nation's security; whether they increase the likelihood of costly wars on a "sub-atomic level"; and to what extent it's possible to come to terms with Russia.

Following are highlights of Gray's views which are carrying much weight with the President:

"There is strong impression (inside the military) that there is no device that by itself can transcend the element of Soviet hostility which, in our view, is not just mutual suspicion, but comes from a deeply-rooted hostile intent — the Soviet objective of world domination.

"There is serious question whether the various proposals, even where their formidable difficulties can be overcome, are in any sense compatible with the maintenance and development of our military capabilities. . . . So long as Communist totalitarianism is an active force in the international scene, we must remain doubtful that any total reduction of capabilities is achievable.

"The weight of evidence points strongly to the conclusion that the key to any significant and safe reduction of arms is to be found only in a real change of the Soviet order."

Note: General O. P. Weyland, Tactical Air Commander, has as yet not been asked his views on Defense Secretary Wilson's proposed reduction of the Air Force's 137 Wing goal. As commander of a large portion of the Air Force combat strength, Weyland would be directly affected by such a cut. But his opinion is still unsought.

You're Telling Me

A court has decided an Illinois man need not pay his divorced wife $10 a week for the support of her four cats. Ten bucks per — that does sound like a lot of scratch!

On Broadway

—by Walter Winchell

Life is full of magic again for Ingrid Bergman. Her magnificent performance in "Anastasia" and her glowing beauty — which seems carved out of moonlight — have inspired the enthusiasm of critics. Moreover, her emoting in "Tales of Sappho" (in Paris) is an immense personal triumph.

As an actress is exceeded only by the happiness she enjoys as a wife and mother. And so, after so many years of thunder, there is music. In the quiet hours, Ingrid must wonder about the vagaries of her personal history. The irony and contrast, the jubilant peaks and depths of despair. Frequently tormented, never embittered, she must derive deep satisfaction from the knowledge that her faith endured.

Ingrid Bergman was a beautiful, talented woman who was serenaded by the populace. And none could hear the thunder of the future. . . . One critic gushed "She is not just a beautiful woman; she is a Work of Art." Another recorded the following valentine: "No tarnish to her glamour, but rather an attribute to her charm is her motherhood. Married to a

Holiday Vacations Popular

By Jim Riley

Gilbert L. Smrz, general manager of the Line Material plant, and Mrs. Smrz departed for Boston and a holiday vacation yesterday.

The Dreher Ave., Stroudsburg, residents, will vacation with son and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Smrz departed from the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton airport and flew directly to Boston.

Mrs. Cora Price, Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Laura Osborne, East Stroudsburg, have arrived in Florida for the winter months.

They are located at Southern Trailer Court, Riviera Beach.

Lt. Sylvia Hauser, Delaware Water Gap, surprised her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hauser, when she arrived for the holidays.

Sylvia is a senior nurse at the Family Annex of the Naval Hospital, North Island, Coronado, Calif.

The Delaware Water Gap nurse flew in from California.

The Charles Levergoods — she's the former Jackie James — arrived home for the Christmas holidays yesterday. Center of attention Wednesday night up at Biggs' Restaurant, however, was young Sharon Theresa Levergood, the two-months old "new arrival."

Charlie is now assistant supervisor in the life (that's insurance) department of Aetna Insurance, Richmond, Va., and he talks like a one-man Richmond chamber of commerce. Glad to be home for the holidays, though anyway, he said.

One of the few families we know around here who really can say they "travel in numbers" is the family of Rev. William Wunder, Grace Lutheran Church, Eastburg.

In case you don't see what we mean, you should've been in Le-Bar's drug store Wednesday night about 8. Bill was sitting at one end of the counter and the rest of the stools were devoted to little Wunders. The girl behind the counter was having some fun mixing all those sodas, too.

Rev. Forrest Spriggs, new minister at Beakleville and Portland Baptist Churches, is making the rounds of the area for the first time.

The people who have met the new pastor have been very favorably impressed — and that includes we folks here at The Daily Record.

Walt Bjorn, a senior at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, will work in the postoffice at Clifton Heights, Pa., over the Christmas-New Year's holidays.

Clifton Heights, near Philadelphia, is the home town of Mrs. Bjorn.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

World Must Adjust To Shifting U. S. Policy Which Puts Center Of Friendship In India

It is still an economic truism that real power exists in those countries which manufacture the greatest quantities of steel.

We are still in the steel age. The largest producer of steel is the United States, producing about 117,000,000 tons a year. Soviet Russia comes next with a minimum of about 50,000,000 tons a year. This figure means that Soviet Russia surpassed Great Britain which produced only 22,120,000 tons in 1955.

West Germany has made the greatest progress among European nations despite the fact that Germany is split into two parts, one held by Soviet Russia. The economic superiority of West over East Germany must make a tremendous impression upon all the German people who undoubtedly wonder why socialistic production is so inferior to capitalistic production in the same country.

Germany is producing more steel than France and Great Britain and is pushing the Volkswagen which has now passed a million units. This is an enormous figure by European standards. It needs to be noted that the Volkswagen has invaded the American market.

Economists may draw all sorts of conclusions from the unusually sound condition of West Germany but it might all be summed up in the ability of a people to work hard to pursue conservative and tested principles, to be imaginative in commerce and industry without prolonging dependence upon their neighbors beyond reason.

Furthermore the Germans have a persistent memory of the horrors of inflation and they avoid it like a plague which it really is. Therefore they handled their post-World War II inflation very carefully and depended on foreign trade to produce a balance in their favor which they have succeeded in doing. The West Germans have competed successfully in Europe and other markets against other European nations only because they recognized that in foreign trade lay their independence and to that foreign trade they devoted themselves.

Japan is trying to do the same thing but with less success than West Germany because Japan's principal and logical markets are closed on account of Communist occupation of these areas. If Japan succeeds in trading freely with Manchuria, Red China and Siberia, Japan will have an enormous balance of trade in her favor. It is really remarkable that the Japanese have for so long resisted the Soviet blandishments to join the Asiatic-African group as a first step toward becoming neutral.

The next step, of course, would be an economic alliance with Red China — and then nobody can tell what could happen. The Japanese must trade with the mainland of Asia if they are to become strong again, just as West Germany has to engage in a world-wide foreign trade if it is to be independent and strong.

American foreign policy is shifting from the traditional current in which it has moved since 1815. This policy has been basically Europe First and it has generally been related to British foreign policy. If the United States is to leave that policy and to adopt another in which the center of friendship is India, then all other countries must adjust to that.

For instance, West Germany, under such circumstances, will be increasingly interested in the European Union and will support the ideas of the Belgian, Paul Henri Spaak. It is more than likely that Great Britain will forsake many traditional concepts and will come closer to the European Union idea than it has ever been.

In Asia, the danger lies in the possibility that Japan will be forced into the arms of Red China which the Japanese would prefer to an association with India which is worth little or nothing to them economically or culturally. Or, Japan, alternatively, could try to revive the principles of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance on an economic rather than a military scale.

What we are viewing now is a major shift of international relationships that usually occur during a war or immediately preceding a war. Rarely are such changes witnessed during a period of peace. It is undoubtedly true that the new alignment would have occurred had there been no Suez situation, but Suez did aggravate antagonisms between the United States and her Allies which have been developing since Korea and the Anglo-French-Israeli sortie into Egypt brought matters to a head. American support of Nasser appears to a European something not unlike Neville Chamberlain's umbrella at Munich, whatever it may look like to an American.

They heard clearly again the words, "And there were shepherds abiding in the fields, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them. And the angel said, 'Fear not.' And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, 'Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward man.'"

A soldier, who was no instrument of tyranny or oppression, smiled at the group and said, "Merry Christmas!" Hostesses, Red Cross workers and others hurried about in tender solicitude. A general, who in the long dark night of terror, would have frightened the little family, threw open a door of a reception building and pressed a button which touched off no cannon. It lit a Christmas tree! A sergeant started a recording of Irving Berlin's "White Christmas."

Somehow the Gospel according to St. Luke seemed very real again.

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

Terror had left the faces of this father and mother. Their babe in the mother's arms had, out of sheer weariness, ceased crying. This had been no Yuletide night journey through peaceful fields of sheep and shepherds, but a flight through frightful nights and days of bloodshed where skies were lit by the fire of tanks and cannon.

But now suddenly there was the wonderful quiet of the early dawn in a land new to the little family, and the mother saw in the shadowy forms in the dimness figures that could have been shepherds and the Magi. She closed her eyes, saw the cattle and smelled frankincense and myrrh. The terrible journey was over. Tyranny had been at her heels. But it seemed long ago, for now there were peace, good will and love, dimming the memory of a struggle across marshes, the climb over barbed-wired fences and the furtive passage across borders.

She was a little confused, but knew there had been a night ride in an airplane with kindly people, and a star of Bethlehem in the form of a light flashing from a Statue of Liberty and an airport beacon. Now this father, mother and babe were safe amid the perfume of spruce and hemlock instead of the odor of gunpowder and burning rubble. The child opened its eyes suddenly and perhaps heard bells tinkling somewhere and sensed reindeer drawing a sleigh driven by a jolly fat man. The child clapped its hands and crooned in delight at whatever it saw or felt. The father clasped the mother's hand, his grip tightening as both thought asked for help in getting the boys down. The boys ended up spending the night on the bald mountain peak. Next day nobody was willing to admit that the thing had been out of the ordinary at all even though they hadn't hesitated the night before. The scouts cleared the whole thing up by saying that one of the boys had gone all the way down to the highway earlier in the night and had come right back up again.

Another in a rash of "break-ins" occurred out in the West End. State police said thieves broke into a Summer home in Kunkletown, stole $500 worth of merchandise and smeared eggs all over the walls. The break-in set a pattern for several others which were to follow. East Stroudsburg firemen, set upon by the unfriendly winds of weather, finally got to stage their fireworks demonstration on July 9 after two postponements. Workmen clearing debris from "Death Island" below Camp Davis uncovered the body of this area's 70th 1955 flood victim. Dr. Charles Rushmore, coroner, identified the body as that of Mrs. Helen Lawyer, Orange, N. J., one of a family of four lost in the flood.

State Highway Secretary Joseph (Jo-Jo) Lawler asked the Federal government to get in on the construction of the Keystone Shortway between Stroudsburg and Sharon; said that if they did the State would pay 90 percent of it under that new multi-million dollar Federal highway program. If it came true it really sounded like the short-way to long-range planning to us. Couple of days later Lawler took up arms against a group pressuring for Route 6 as the logical cross-state link; said that so far as he was concerned the Stroudsburg-Sharon route was the right one.

The Harrisburg engineering firm of Gannett, Fleming, Cordry and Carpenter submitted its report on the proposed Thruway for the Stroudsburg. Eight interchanges were recommended. The report later came under fire by a small group of local citizens. East Stroudsburg Council got together on the 11th and said their parking problem was pretty serious, too. Said maybe they ought to have a parking authority like Stroudsburg's. Burgess Jesse Flory said the situation was tough, but there were several other things that had to come first.

County commissioners said they were applying for surplus foods available through the State and would set up a distribution center in the courthouse basement. Father Butler Council, Knights of Columbus, presented an award to Richard Mannheim, Eastburg man who adopted a young Korean boy, for his "devotion and charity" in the Christian ideal. Francis Pitkin, director of community development for the State, told the Chamber of Commerce here that Monroe County ought to get busy and work out zoning rules to keep pace with increased growth. Zoning or no zoning, that part about growing sounded good.

"Mystery"

This area's biggest "mystery" kept right on going and, like Topsy, it just grew and grew. The case at hand was the grand jury probe into construction phases at Tobyhanna Signal Depot. It wasn't right a "whodunit", of course, but more of a "what was it." The probe resumed in the third week. There were hints of what was going on, but no real guesses. Whatever it was, almost nobody thought the butler did it this time. Pike County's "youngest" slayer, 13-year-old James Van Why, was still in prison there. A three-member commission to study and make recommendation on his sanity was named on July 19.

Monroe County Civil Defense put us through our paces in a test air raid alert; said the whole thing was "almost perfect". If it's been an H-bomb quite a few of us who stuck our heads out windows or stood and gawked at the big, wide blue might not have been here next day—but it's hard to make people really believe in things like that.

The seven-week strike at Ransom ended on the 20th. Workers got a new contract granting up to 18 cents increase in wages and fringe benefits over the following two years. Acceptance of the contract by both sides came after one of those conferences that lasted into the wee, small hours of the morning.

Rep. Francis E. Walter got the State American Legion's distinguished service award for the year at its convention in Philadelphia. William D. (Bill) Johnson, Stroudsburg, was chosen to serve as public relations director for the State Union Chamber of Commerce. Work on those washed-out bridges up on Route 611 at Bartonsville started on the 23rd. The Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen opened its ninth annual "fair" at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College; attracted a bumper crop of exhibits and a goodly crowd.

One of July's most unusual stories came from Bobby Westbrook, our social editor. Bobby paid a call on Hazel Harms, a lady-in-waiting for her own house up in Pike County. The woman had been ousted from her home for non-payment of taxes. So she pitched a pup-tent nearby and slept under the stars by way of protest. Mrs. Westbrook's account of a nighttime social call was one of the highlights of the year.

A Signal Corps official gave us what might be described as heartening news on a most disheartening subject. The subject was war. And Lt. Col. Leon J. Fishkin, liaison officer in the Corps' Washington office told local Lions Club members that "mobility" could deter future wars. Because it's possible now to move quickly and put out the "small brush-fire" kind of war, most people would think twice before they started a big one. We hope they not only thought twice but stopped playing with matches, too.

Collision

Mrs. Margaret Antonacci, Stateford, was on her way home from her daughter's wedding in Italy on July 26. It was a relatively quiet, calm night on the Atlantic and the Andrea Doria moved swiftly toward New York. Mrs. Antonacci settled down for another peaceful night on board the Italian Line's luxury ship. What happened then, she did not know. The ship shuddered, horribly. Then she smelled smoke. The Stateford woman told The Record later: "I ran upstairs when I saw smoke. Other people began to jump, but I didn't because I had no life preserver." Eventually the captain and a crewman helped her down the rope and into a lifeboat. She was saved. Her story, told to Paul Carlson, the following day gave local residents a striking insight into the terror of the Doria-Stockholm collision in mid-sea.

Thieves broke into Gray's Chevrolet agency out at Tannersville; made off with an estimated $5,000 in cash and checks, police said. A natural gas prospecting company let us know they were getting ready to make test boring in Pike County. Two men up Bushkill way kept up a running argument for a whole month, police said; then Alfred Garris got out his 12-gauge shotgun and let fly a blast at Alfred Arminas, a local resort worker. Garris ran a tavern up there. Arminas went to the hospital with wounds in his legs. Garris was held for questioning by police.

We had six violent deaths during the month—a drowning, traffic deaths, a suicide and a death from burns. At Lake Wallenpaupack, nine-year-old David Williams, Plymouth Meeting, went hiking with two other boys on the first day of the month. David slipped at the top of a 35-foot cliff, fell and hit a jutting rock below.

Nine days later Albert Bachman, 30, of East Stroudsburg, died of injuries he sustained when his car was wrecked on Foxtown Hill. Mrs. Alverta Knecht, 34, Saylorburg RD 1, was killed when the tractor she was driving pinned her body to the trunk of a tree. Alan Kingslake, 17, of Rochester, N. Y., drowned in Lake Wallenpaupack. In Newfoundland, Mrs. Ellen Bartleson, 65, was fatally burned when cleaning fluid exploded; she put out the fire before calling help. In Brodheadsville, the body of Mrs. Delina Culby was found hanging in the cellar of her home; the coroner's verdict was suicide.

The two biggest news stories of the month concerned a circus and that illegal still. The circus hit broke on July 15 when Stroud Township residents looked out their windows and found—yikes—that the backyard was full of elephants. Further investigation revealed that the elephants, a hippo, a laughing hyena and several assorted vehicles were part of the dying (and bankrupt) King Bros. Circus.

Crowds

Crowds gathered during the day to watch the elephants drink on the banks of the beautiful Brodheads. Circus officials blamed the death of the great, old giant on television. There were many efforts to revive the circus during the rest of the month, but none of them succeeded—the circus was tooled up in its own financial red tape and confusions to go on.

We never thought it could happen here—but it did. On the 27th up Marshalls Creek way, Federal (Treasury) agents uncovered, seized and confiscated a 1,000-gallon still and arrested four men. It happened, of all unlikely places, on a Boy Scout (Resica) reservation which, of course, reminded us of Indians on reservations and how the poor Redman was never allowed to have firewater on his.

Bob Clark, The Daily Record's new sports editor, took time off from baseball and such and made the raid with the T-men. Clark came back with one of our two top news stories of the month and one of the biggest of the year.

Officers estimated the still could turn out 100 gallons of raw whiskey in a batch. They said the cost of making alcohol was 90 cents a gallon and it was sold wholesale at $4 to $6 a quart. Running at a good, steady clip, the T-men said, the thing could pump out 200 to 225 gallons a week. Man said the boys weren't too sanitary about the thing, either: They used a felt hat to strain the final process before bottling the goods. A friend of ours who admits to taking a wee nip now and again allowed as how it was the saddest story of the year.

One of our front page stories during the month was about that young couple on the TV show called "Do You Trust Your Wife?" They won $100 a week for 14 years on, roughly, $74,000. Man we know, on reading this bit, said: "I can't think of any woman in a world I wouldn't trust for $100 a week."

We thought about Delilah and Salome and a couple of others we'd heard rumors about in our time, but the boy was unshaken. It's a hundred bucks, says he.

Couple of minutes later his wife asked for $20. Said she was going "shopping". With a tone we could only describe as highly suspicious, our man wanted to know: "What do you need $20 for?"

"We thought we won that argument, hands down, at least."

"Something New Every Day"

THE BEGINNING OF CHRIST'S LIFE is told in the mural behind these first grade students at Ramsey School. Under guidance of Miss Margaret Bryson, their teacher, the pupils painted a mural showing the arrival of Joseph and Mary in Bethlehem; the city itself, at night; the Three Wise Men; The Star and the infant Jesus. No effort was made to change the delineation in drawing done by the children; it is their work, inspired by the world's never-changing story. Here the pupils pose for their picture before the full-length 'painting' they have done. For other work done by grade school children, residents are invited to look at the front window of The Daily Record building where a similar mural has been hung.

Slate Belt Elks Assure Dinners

BANGOR—Christmas dinners are assured for 85 families in the Slate Belt area this year through the efforts of the charity committee of Bangor Lodge 1106, BPO Elks.

Members of the lodge will assemble at the home at 9 a. m., Saturday for the day-long task of distributing food baskets to the needy under the direction of the committee headed by James Gaffney.

Group

Nearly 300 persons are included in the families to be visited in Bangor, Roseto, Pen Argyl, East Bangor, Wind Gap, Portland, Mount Bethel and Delabole together with adjacent rural sections.

In addition to the food baskets made possible by the men's lodge, the Ladies Auxiliary is donating stuffed toys to be placed in baskets delivered to homes where there are children.

REVOLUTIONARY NEW HEATING SYSTEM

IRON FIREMAN® SelectTemp HEATING

gives any temperature you want in each room

Here's a revolutionary Iron Fireman development in heating for buildings and homes! It's so simple, so practical, and brings such a new standard in indoor comfort, that many ask, "Why didn't someone invent SelectTemp years ago?" SelectTemp accomplishes what heating engineers for years have tried to do. It provides a sensitive, dependable system of temperature control for each room, plus greater comfort and economy than any other heating system known.

A thermostat in every room, plus many other advantages

Modulated heat. Both temperature and air volume automatically modulated to offset heat losses and gains.

Low initial cost. For modernization and new construction. Small copper tubing, corrosion resistant and with long life, carries steam to individual room heater units. Boiler can be located anywhere desired.

Low fuel costs. Temperature easily reduced in unused rooms; overheating eliminated. Fuels: gas, oil, coal, or district steam.

Lower power costs. Low pressure steam provides heat and also operates circulating fans. Non-electric thermostats. No wiring.

Filtered circulated air. Replaceable filter in each room unit.

Automatically balanced. System automatically compensates, in each room, for changes in outdoor temperature, sun or fireplace heat.

For every size and type of building — Apartment Houses, Hotels, Motels, Schools, Churches, Office Buildings, Institutions, Hospitals. Ideal both for new construction and modernization.

Business Column

1957 May Be Good Year
For Business

MEMBERS of the Lehigh Valley Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants, were told at their December meeting held at the Elks Club in Allentown that facts and figures indicated a good year in 1957.

Speaking on the subject, "The Business Outlook," John R. Bunting, associate economist of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, made the prophecy, but with some reservations.

"When confidence pervades," he said, "it means good things ahead. But overconfidence is bad and when facts and figures are forgotten and wishful thinking predominates, look out!"

As a basis for his optimistic forecast, Bunting cited dollar estimates of government spending (federal, state and local), proposed business investment in plants and inventory, estimated consumer investment in housing and general spending.

"What all these seem to portend," he continued, "is that 1957 looks like a fine business year. But at this time next year, if some of the dreams and wishful thoughts haven't been fulfilled, business activity may be in the process of changing direction."

The speaker was introduced by vice president Albert C. Metzger of Allentown.

The board of directors met after the regular meeting, at which Francis W. Fehr, director of education, announced completion of plans for the discussion forum to be held at Hotel Easton on Jan. 26 and 27. The subject of this year's forum will be "A Re-Examination of Cost Accounting Objectives and Methods."

President Charles T. Farley, who presided at both meetings, announced the next chapter meeting would be held at the Bethlehem Club on Jan. 18.

EARNINGS accruing to the common stock of Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. for the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1956 were $20,637,442, equivalent to $3.49 per share of common stock outstanding at such date, as compared with $18,257,292 or $3.09 per share for the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1955.

Earnings for both periods include earnings of former subsidiary, The Scranton Electric Co. (merged Jan. 31, 1956) for applicable periods prior to merger and earnings for 1955 also include restated earnings of the former Pennsylvania Water and Power Co. (merged June 1, 1955).

Revenues for the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1956 on the same basis were $129,810,201, an increase of 6.5 percent over comparable revenues for the previous year.

If effect is given to recent orders of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission dated July 16, 1956 and Nov. 20, 1956 requiring certain refunds and rate reductions, including non-recurring interest applicable to such refunds, it is estimated that earnings per share would get $3.34 for the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1956 and $2.89 for the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1955. Both of these orders are in litigation and have not become final.

Mount Pocono

Mount Pocono — Mr. and Mrs. Louis Vacola have returned from a two weeks' vacation, spent visiting in Canton, Ohio, Pittsburgh and Shenandoah.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Gilland spent several days with their son and his family in Towson, Md. Mrs. Gilland spent a week visiting her brother and his family in Parkville, Md., returning to Mount Pocono last week-end.

The federal government owns about 21 per cent of all property in the United States.

Newfoundland Legion To Hold
Meeting At New Post Home

NEWFOUNDLAND—The final business session of Phillips-Zacharias-Phillips Post 859, American Legion, for 1956 will be held at the new Post Home on Thursday, Dec. 27, according to Commander Weiden Hector.

At a recent meeting, it was announced that the construction costs to date for the 28 by 32 Legion Home which is being built to replace the one lost in the August, 1955 flood, stand at $7,000.

Volunteer labor is being utilized wherever possible, although some skilled labor is necessarily required. The new home is of cinder block construction, single story with a full basement, and is expected to cost between $10,000 and $12,000 when completed.

Big Room

The main floor will contain one big room which will be available for community use when the project is completed. There will be a small kitchen.

Nine members of the Legion Post attended the recent meeting when the group met for the first time in the new home. During the discussion of business, hamsters and saws were in evidence as the men worked on the interior of the building.

Present were Commander Hector, First Vice Commander John Rohacker, Adjutant Robert Rehfort, Chaplain Ellis Akers, Robert Staph, Elmore Haag, Willard Newcomer, Robert Marzch and Robert Meyers.

Cadillac

Surpasses its Own Great Reputation!

You're looking at a mighty surprised man.

Almost all of his adult life he has owned Cadillac cars. And so, when he came in to see and drive the new 1957 Cadillac, he thought he knew about what to expect.

Well, here he is—barely under way in the city's traffic—and already he is learning the startling truth.

He is learning that nothing could adequately prepare a man for the new "car of cars"—not even Cadillac ownership itself!

He suspected it, in fact, the instant he caught his first glimpse of this newest Cadillac creation. This was an entirely new kind of Cadillac beauty—brilliantly fresh in line and in contour.

And then he opened the door and swung into the driver's seat—and found added evidence all around him. On every side were new miracles of interior beauty and comfort and convenience.

And when he turned the key and put his foot on the accelerator, his sentiment grew to conviction. The car was incredibly nimble and quiet and smooth of ride.

Surprised, did we say? Well, just wait until he hits a stretch of open highway.

That great new engine is incredibly responsive. There is new balance and ease of motion. And the car is so easy to handle that it seems almost to know the road.

No question about it—this is the Cadillac that literally surpasses its own great reputation!

We suggest that you come in soon to see and drive this surprising new Cadillac. It's an experience you shouldn't postpone—and one you'll not soon forget.

You'll be welcome at any time.

Pocono Township School Music Department Presents 'Our Christmas Inheritance' Show

TANNERSVILLE—Students at Pocono Township School presented a special program titled "Our Christmas Inheritance" last night at 8 in the school auditorium.

Those taking part in the program were from the music department of the school. The program was directed by Mary H. Scott Rees.

Seven traditions of Christmas were presented. They were: Festive Celebrations, Jesus' Birth, Santa Claus, Hanging the Christmas Stocking, Christmas trees, Gifts and Candles and Holly Decorations.

Among those taking part: Danny Paul, reader; Larry Starnier, Scriptures; Steve Luckey and Anna Marie Ruchman, story tellers; Elizabeth Frailley, soloist; Joan Sprague, pianist.

Members of the fourth grade chorus were heard and these varied solo parts were included in the playlet: Ray Butz, druid priest; Kathy Atkins, Linda Babcock, Marilyn Casella and Elaine

Erickson, mistletoe girls; Sharon Litwin played "Mary" and Watson Bullock portrayed "Joseph."

Also Donald Bonser, and Roy Tallada as shepherds; William Newhart, John Lesoine, Jr., and Lowell Starnier as the Wise Men; Robert Webster, Michael Adams and David Sebring as English gentlemen; Dorothy Hay, "Holly"; Leah Paul, "Ivy" and Joan Meadows as the child.

Members of the sixth grade served as production staff for the program, Mrs. Rees said.

Christmas Seals $2,000 Below Goal

SLIGHTLY more than $2,000 is needed to put the Christmas Seal campaign over the top.

Sales up to yesterday totaled $9,461.23 against a goal of $11,500, it was disclosed by the Monroe County Tuberculosis and Health Society.

Remaining

The annual appeal for funds was addressed to 9,057 persons this year. To date, 5,415 have responded and hopes of raising the present campaign deficit rest with the 3,612 who have not yet replied.

TB Society officials appealed to everyone who has not contributed to do so as quickly as possible so that the full quota can be reached before the drive ends.

THE MEN WHO belong to Monroe County's Police Reserve found out that when their Auxiliary promises a "surprise," they really mean it.

Last night the two groups held a joint meeting. The men got rid of the business at hand, first.

Afterward the women were supposed to dish up refreshments in the East Stroudsburg fire hall. That, most of the men thought, was the "surprise."

Jackets

Turned out they were pessimists. The women unveiled a real surprise along with the coffee, cake and stuff—uniform jackets for Summer and Spring for each man in the group.

Auxiliary members held cake-walks, bake sales and other drives to earn money for the jackets, according to its officials.

Winged Performance and a Floating Ride make The Big M the road-hungriest car ever built

BIGGEST SIZE INCREASE IN THE INDUSTRY—Mercury is now over 17½ feet long, more than 6½ feet wide. Wheelbase is a big 122 inches. Inside there are inches more headroom, leg room—as much shoulder room, for example, as in many of the most expensive cars.

3-WAY POWER CHOICE

New 290-hp Turnpike Cruiser V-8

Wait till you feel its silk-and-dynamite performance! Compression ratio is a power-boosting 9.75 to 1. Displacement is a mile-shrinking 368 cubic inches. Torque is a mountain-hungry 405 lb.-ft. Optional on all Montclairs and Montereys.

New 255-hp Safety-Surge V-8 with Power-Booster Fan

This great new engine features a revolutionary Mercury "first" in the Montclair Series. The engine fan coasts when not needed for cooling. You save horsepower other cars waste. Engine sound is reduced, you enjoy a far quieter ride.

New 255-hp Safety-Surge V-8

Dream-car performance in the Monterey Series, Mercury's lowest priced line! Features another Mercury "first" which you get at no extra cost on all big M engines for '57—a Thermo-matic Carburetor. It automatically controls the temperature of the air the engine breathes—helps keep it uniform summer and winter. Engine starting is easier, usable power and economy are increased.

YEAR'S MOST IMPORTANT RIDE IMPROVEMENTS

Exclusive Full-Cushion Shock Absorbers—The first shock absorbers in the industry to give such amazing bump-smothering control on rough roads without sacrificing a soft, satin-smooth ride on average roads. They are teamed with Mercury's new improved springing action. Special high-speed valves built into the shock absorbers act as hydraulic cushions when there are rapid changes between bumps and ruts. Any bounce or rebound is controlled as if by a giant hand.

New Swept-Back Ball-Joint Front Suspension—Mercury introduces a new improved version of its famous suspension system—the finest, most advanced ball-joint front suspension on the market today. Because of the new swept-back design, the front wheels are now, in effect, pulled gently over bumps, rather than pushed into them. The benefits: easier handling, more responsive steering.

New balanced weight distribution greatly reduces nose dipping on sudden stops and lurching on fast starts. Mercury's extra weight, length, width, and wheelbase also add greatly to stability.

New road-hugging center of gravity—Everything is lower. Car height, passenger compartment, frame, and rear axle. You enjoy an amazing sense of "nailed-down" stability on curves.

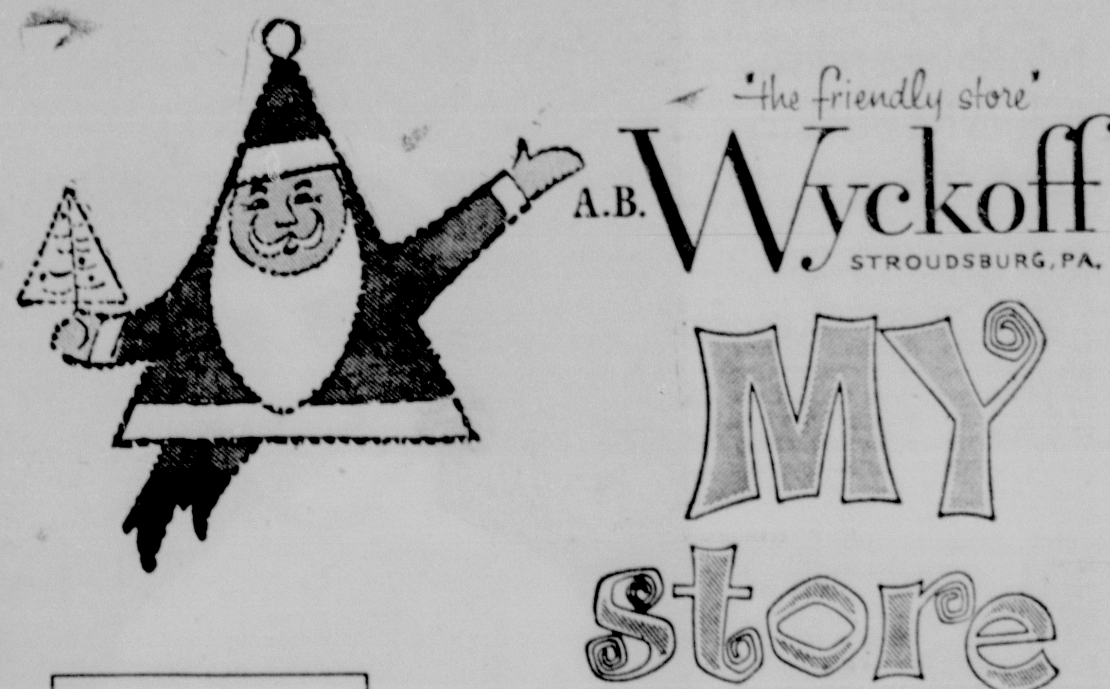

You've got to feel Mercury's Floating Ride to believe it. We invite you to do just that, today, at our showroom.

Arrangements Mark Garden Club Meeting

Christmas arrangements, music and refreshments marked the meeting of the Monroe County Garden Club yesterday afternoon in the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church.

The Ramsey Elementary Chorus, under the direction of Miss Alice Bellairs, sang "Jesus Our Lord," "Angels From the Realms of Glory," "Silent Night," "Go Tell It To the Mountains," "O, Come All Ye Faithful," while Judy Riccardo sang "Sleep My Little Jesus" as a solo number.

Mrs. Frederick Banta, with Elsie Low as accompanist, sang "Stranger Of Gallilee" and "Silent Night."

Mrs. William Hannas presided at the business meeting when the club authorized the purchase of Victoria Kasperski's book, "How to Make Cut Flowers Last," for the garden shelf at the library; and a silver offering was taken for the Salvation Army Christmas fund.

The arrangements by the members featured the Christmas theme: Mrs. Russell Harmon exhibited holly grown in Oregon; and mistletoe from North Carolina in its native state around a tree branch; Mrs. W. R. Erickson displayed a Christmas ball tree wired with greens; Mrs. Paul Fetherman had converted goblets into Christmas candleholders; and Mrs. Roy Houser used the religious theme for a shadow box of holly and green with mistletoe and a door swatch of green and gold wheat and green and gold balls; Mrs. Bernard Peters a woodland scene with driftwood; and Mrs. William Hannas a soft green ceramic cornucopia spilling small gold balls and pinecones.

The tea table, decorated by Mrs. Elwood Grant, featured gold, the symbol of light; green, the symbol of eternity; and a lighted angel to symbolize peace on earth.

Mrs. W. R. Erickson and Mrs. Bernard Peters poured. Mrs. Russell Harmon and Mrs. Ralph Mook and Mrs. Carl Wagner were chairmen of the tea committee which included Mrs. Andrew Auerbacher, Mrs. Gordon Coy Sr., and Mrs. Roy Houser.

Family Party Tomorrow For Valley WSCS

Cherry Valley — The annual Christmas party of the Cherry Valley Women's Society of Christian Service will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Eoyd on Saturday night at 8.

Each one attending is asked to bring a 50-cent gift for the grab-bag; the women a gift for a woman; the men a gift for a man; and the children gifts for children. All secret pals will be revealed at this time with gifts as well, and there will be games and entertainment for the whole family.

Guests Of Fitzmaurice's

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fitzmaurice entertained members of Den Four, Cub Pack 83, at a dinner at their home in Craig's Meadows recently. Homemade cake and cookies were served after dinner.

Present for the dinner were Michael McDaniel, Elizabeth Dennis, Mary Ann Fish, Mrs. Thomas Naurice, John Garrity, John Fitzmaurice, Thomas Fish, David Kunz.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

While the social calendar is beginning to taper off, the social affairs are just beginning to build up to a pretty rousing crescendo. Scheduled meetings with programs and minutes and reports are practically non-existent during the holidays, while unscheduled events like engagements and visitings back and forth and open houses are beginning in earnest.

Some year I may be fooled. Maybe the mistletoe will lose its power, the season of love turn all platonic and every interested young man will think of something else to give his best girl instead of engagement ring for Christmas. But until that year comes I just sit with my hand out waiting for the pictures and engagements to come pouring in between the holidays.

This year there also seem to be a lot more weddings than usual. Or perhaps because they concern young people of the generation I know best, it just seems like more weddings. Santa Claus will get pretty short shift in the households where weddings are brewing. I'll bet, and may find himself shut up in the closet with the wedding veil.

A Christmas wedding is the fact that an anniversary never slips by unheralded and unnoticed. But if the brides think that means they get twice as many presents every year they haven't yet realized what happens to budgets.

Just ask somebody with a birthday on December 26.

Dolores Hill Is Bride Of Guy Serfass

Bangor — Miss Dolores E. Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hill, of Alpha Rd., Wind Gap, on Saturday became the bride of Guy Robert Serfass, son of Mrs. Leroy Serfass and the late Leroy Serfass.

Rev. John C. Brumbaugh, pastor of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed Church, in Bangor, performed the ceremony in the parsonage.

The bride was attired in a street length wool dress made in princess style with a jewel necklace. She wore a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Ralph Lohb, of Pen Argyl, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a mint green dress and a corsage of white roses. Mr. Lohb was best man.

On their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Serfass will reside at 312 George St., Pen Argyl. Both are graduates of Pen Argyl Area High School. Mrs. Serfass is employed by the Valerie Fashion Co., and Mr. Serfass by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company.

Gearharts By The Dozen At Family Dinner

The twelve children of the late Theodore and Amanda Gearhart of Gilbert, all hale and hearty, gathered for their annual family Christmas dinner on Sunday at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Leffler in Emmaus, with their wives and husbands.

The four daughters were seated at the head of the table: Mrs. John Gregory, Stroudsburg; Mrs. Susan Nussbaum, Mrs. Edna Courtright, and Mrs. Leffler, while the sons ranged down the side: William, Gearhart; Rev. Nevin Gearhart, Dr. Lyster Gearhart, Martin Gearhart, Mark Gearhart, Kenneth Gearhart, and Franklin Gearhart. Charles R. Gearhart was the only son not present in person since he is now in Turkey, but he sent a long letter to the family which each one answered at the dinner.

Their aunt, Mrs. Edward Bruch, 80, East Stroudsburg, was also a guest of honor with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Shafer, and the Gearhart spouses: Dr. John Gregory, Albert Courtright, Mrs. William Gearhart, Mrs. Nevin Gearhart, Mrs. Lyster Gearhart, Mrs. Martin Gearhart, Mrs. Mark Gearhart, Mrs. Kenneth Gearhart and Mrs. Franklin Gearhart.

THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

And still I see them everywhere... dollar-and-under gifts, I mean. A few that haven't been mentioned include the delicately figured paper napkins, priced at 50¢ a box, in our gift department... the 25¢ paper guest towels, and 49¢-and-up plastic doilies in the same display... then, in our notions department you'll find floral-decorated wooden sock darning at 15¢... rubber shower caps at 69¢... colorful plastic shower caps at 29¢... and, at 1.00: shower caps in floral-print containers... big velvet strawberry needle or pin holders in "quart" baskets, wrapped in cellophane and tied with pretty bows... attractive oval-shaped plastic cylinders containing Janie spot cleaner for rugs, another for clothing, and a brush... cloth scuffs for wear at home and easy packing when traveling... laundry-marking pencils... plastic Jiffy Dryer cases, with suction-cupped clothes line for easy hanging anywhere, and a gaily colored assortment of clothes clips... clear lucite shell-shaped cases with pegs on which to arrange 28 spools of thread... travel dryer kits... two miniature plastic hangers, pink or blue, in daintily be-ribboned box... and, in our gift department, wrought iron trivets, and decorative cutting boards.

Back in notions again, you'll find pot holders priced at 15¢ and 89¢—a necessity for every housewife who'll be lifting a Christmas turkey out of the oven... for the career girl there are plastic cufflets, bound in colorful tape, and priced at 59¢... pressing cloths and pinkish shears, are 79¢ each... guest towels, to be embroidered, are of finest linen and just 89¢... Sammy the Shammy, of ample size and neatly packaged, is also 89¢, as are the cute recipe files of metal with port design in our stationery department.

At 1.00 our stationery department has whimsically-designed brass stamp boxes that hold a roll of postage. These would dress up any desk, and would be particularly wonderful for the student away from home... and I've already mentioned the 1.00 cook books, and such other beautifully illustrated volumes as Henry Van Dyke's "The Other Wise Man". There's also a 1.00 book for the lover of canines on "How To Train The Family Dog."

In our housewares department, 1.00 will buy you a zippered Trusty Crust. This is a slipcover into which you place your pie dough. You roll it, remove it, and it's neat as a pin, with no headaches such as rolling 'round and 'round the roller. Many a new bride would welcome this—and many an "old" bride too!... Oh, a dollar goes a long way in Mary Hite's department. There you'll find countless lovely and efficient serving accessories of shiny chrome... kitchen saws... salt and pepper shakers with either red or green plastic stands... and sets of four individual covered casseroles in pink and black.

For 98¢, you can buy a Foley ball-bearing rolling pin... for 69¢, a Foley baster... for 59¢, a cheese cutter and board... or a Handy duplex serving fork that works on the principle of scissors... juicers are 49¢... aluminum "stuffin' plates," that eliminate the need for string, needles or skewers in preparing fowl for the oven, are 59¢ a set of three, and are sized for duck, chicken or turkey. And that exhausts me for the moment. Shopping for ideas to give you is fun—but gosh, it does start me making a list of my own which could be mighty costly!

"Packs", manager of Wyckoff's beauty salon, announces that we now have a very skillful new operator—Mary George, formerly of The Ideal. We welcome her to the Wyckoff store family, and are sure you'll be delighted with her services. Incidentally—how's YOUR hair today? Mine's a mess. If I can't get an appointment, I'm in the market for a wig... or a head scarf... or—well, what else is there?

Cherry Lane Program

Cherry Lane Methodist Sunday School will hold their Christmas entertainment on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the church, to which the public is invited. An interesting program has been arranged by Mrs. Hope Sweitzer and Mrs. Helen Shaffer.

Living Tableau At Shawnee Church Sunday

Shawnee—The Shawnee Presbyterian Church School will hold its Christmas program on Sunday, Dec. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Shawnee Church. A living Nativity scene will be enacted in front of the church from 7 to 7:30 p.m. Mary will be portrayed by Colleen Mosteller; Joseph by Omar Michaels, and the donkey and lamb by themselves.

"Come and Adore Him" is the title of the musical program featuring the children of the church school. The choir is directed by Mrs. Polly Hope and David Newquist. A film strip, "Paintings of the Old Masters" will tell the Christmas story.

Members of the church are asked to bring a gift of non-perishable food as a white gift offering. They will be distributed to needy families in the area by the deacons of the church.

Everyone is invited to attend the service.

Children's Party By Altar, Rosary

Tannersville—The Children's Christmas party, sponsored by the Altar and Rosary Society of Our Lady of Victory Church on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 16, was attended by approximately 70 parishioners, 41 of whom were children under 12.

Santa Claus distributed toys, candy, cookies, oranges and soft drinks. Guests included Monsignor McHugh, Rev. Wm. Cusick and Rev. Robert Galligan. Father Galligan showed a movie that featured Danny Kaye. The party enjoyed coffee and cake.

QUITE a while back a month ago to be exact two coaches, one a Lehigh Valley League mentor and the other a Monroe County Scholastic loop tutor, told this writer on different occasions that Harry Werkheiser had quite a ball club at Pocono Township High.

Considering the early season, and not wanting to put the Tannersville coach more or less on the spot, we let this bit of praise drift to the sidelines until a more opportune time.

But since Werkheiser got his team in first place in the Monroe circuit, and the comparatively easy Pocono moved past Barrett to get in front, we thought it would be okay to give out with what the highly qualified opposing coach and another league tutor thought of Harry's fine team.

The LV boss of the hardwoods was quick to point out that Pocono Twp. should repeat as champions in the Monroe loop this year. He noted, "Harry has one of the better-balanced fives in the section. His team is well-coached and know their fundamentals from A to Z."

"I know," the court general said, "we've had a little contact with Pocono Twp. and from what they revealed they'll go a long way in the Monroe League."

The opposing coach in the Monroe was more pin-pointing in his remarks about Pocono Twp. "You just can't set up a defense to stop one or two boys. They've got five who'll break your heart every time you feel the one or two are halted."

"In Larry Starnes, Paul Frailey, Ron Martinelli, Burdette Peechack, W. Peechack and Vishnesky, Harry has six boys capable of giving you trouble at any moment. Especially the first four mentioned can break your ball game wide open from the first to the last period," he concluded.

Werkheiser, a graduate of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, is now riding high on the log but also is elevated high enough to draw the "team to beat" edict so often cited in each circuit.

We're not trying to put the kiss of death on Harry and his boys, but if they are true champions those words of laud will be like water off a duck's back and roll off with each conquest.

But we did think it was favorable to have one coaching foe and another sideline show enough interest to give credit where it is due.

Whatever, the final result of Pocono Township's championship ambitions only time will tell. But the inevitable answer won't take away anything from the groomed quintet Harry Werkheiser molded at the Tannersville institution.

John Kupiec, the usually mild-mannered Stroudsburg High basketball coach, was hit with his first technical foul in six years the other night in Scranton when his Mountaineers suffered their first setback against Technical High.

Kupiec, soft-spoken to say the least, blew up, when a foul was called on one of his proteges by the referee. John, naturally thinking the call was wrong, let the official know in no uncertain terms. Results: a technical foul against Stroudsburg.

John, while not feeling the "blow down" on his chattered was necessary, had only praise for the official just the same. Kupiec remarked unhesitatingly, "If nothing else the official showed he had intestinal fortitude. He sat me down which was his place all the way."

John, however, was quick to add, "He still missed the call."

If anyone in the area has a little free time today, they should drop over to East Stroudsburg High's gymnasium and watch the Cavaliers match points with Charlie Dubb's Fountain Hill High five.

The Hillers, owner of two successive Lehigh-Northampton League pennants and winners of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association's Class B championship last year, are still rated the Cream of the crop in the L-N with Karol (Moose) Strelecki and Butch Kosman, holdovers from 1955-56 leading the way.

Fans invading Eastburg's gym may see a startling upset and if this doesn't prevail, you'll still be watching the best in the L-N, depending on which side of the fence you're on.

Stroudsburg's Rebounding Downs Central, 59-44

Shook Tops Scorers With 27 As Mountaineers Notch No. 3

STROUDSBURG HIGH, using its tent-like enclosure over both boards, broke away fast and then matched Scranton Central the rest of the way to gain a 59-44 decision over the Golden Eagles in the Mountaineers' gym last night.

Spearheaded by Captain Doug Shook and guided by the controlling hands of Don Hickey and Bob Adelmann, the Mountaineers of John Kupiec ripped through to a convincing 19-3 first quarter lead before chalking up their third victory in four games.

Shook, who canned 27 points to take the night's individual scoring honors, blended beautifully with Hickey and Adelmann in the first period to retrieve practically every rebound that came off the offensive and defensive banks. Adelmann was second high for the Mountaineers with 11.

The Golden Eagles, rated one of the better teams in the Scranton area, never did recover enough from this opening onslaught to make a real game of it.

Once in the third period the Scranton five of Clarence (Fats) Robeson narrowed the margin to 10 points (37-27) but this was only an igniter for the locals as Shook and Company rallied again for 15 to 20-point margins.

Take 8-0 Lead
Stroudsburg, with Shook hitting for four markers and Ron Phillips and Adelmann the had 11 for the night) a pair, pulled out to an 8-0 edge before Scranton managed to dump a foul. The Eagles got their only field goal of the initial eight minutes with seven of them gone. But by this time Stroudsburg had a 10-3 spread.

Then came six points by Shook and two fouls by Graydon Miller and a singleton by Phillips for the 19-3 bulge.

Hickey joined Adelmann and Shook in the scoring act in the second stanza and before you could say Jack Robinson Stroudsburg was ahead 31-13. A Hickey foul was offset by a Glen Krayer field goal and the score read 33-15 in favor of the Mountaineers.

Central Bid
Scranton made its greatest bid in the early part of the third quarter when Jerry Chisadk, who was high for Central with 12, went on a rampage of nine tallies to bring his mates to within ten, 37-27. However, Ted Williams, who replaced the four-foul Hickey, dumped in a pair of one-handers to give Stroudsburg a 45-30 pad going into the final eight minutes.

The Mountaineers, led by the playmaking of Phillips, spurted away to a 50-31 advantage in the start of the fourth and from here on out played even or a point or two behind the invaders.

Adelmann Finishes
Adelmann gave Stroudsburg its final 15-point spread when he closed both team's scoring with two foul tosses.

The contest served as a tuneup for the Mountaineers who open play in the Slatington Invitational Saturday night against Jim Thorpe, starting at 9 p. m.

Shocked' Gore Is Dropped By NFL For 'Younger Umpire'

CINCINNATI, Dec. 20 (AP)—Artie Gore, 42, an umpire in the National League since 1947, was dropped today by President Warren C. Giles to make room for younger talent.

Giles announced the signing of Ken Burkhardt from the Texas League and Tony Venzon from the American Assn.

Gore, who worked two World Series and three All-Star Games, said at his home in Lexington, Mass., that the action "came as a shock."

"The reasons are unknown to me," he told a reporter. "I still don't know why they let me out."

Giles, at league headquarters in Cincinnati, put it this way:

Tries To Explain
"I talked with Gore for 15 minutes trying to explain things to him over the telephone.

"We had the opportunity to get the contracts of two young umpires we had working with us for two years in spring training. If we didn't get their contracts now, we were afraid they would not be available later. We had to make room for them.

"Gore has been very conscientious in his work. That is all I care to say about the matter."

Gore said today that he had had a letter from Giles in November, "which seemed to take it for granted that I still was one of the umpires."

Wife Cries
"Then, Dec. 3 came this call. My wife started to cry a little. After all, I've been umpiring 20 years."

Gore told newsmen Giles offered to announce his situation "as a retirement."

"I didn't want it that way and I still don't," Gore declared, adding:

"I've never done anything dishonorable. I've never turned my back on a play. I've always treated big fellow and little fellow alike. Why should I go walking around like a shrinking violet and pretend I'd retired when I hadn't?"

Giles said Gore would have been eligible for a pension, but that some time ago he took a lump sum of money instead. It was understood several other umpires also took a money settlement in lieu of a monthly pension.

Also Dropped
Also dropped from the National League umpiring staff was Bill Engeln but Giles said he quit to devote his full time to a business enterprise in Palo Alto, Calif.

Parker 'Shuns' Lions' Offer But Available

DETROIT, Dec. 20 (AP)—Buddy Parker today turned down an offer to coach the Detroit Lions again in 1957, but in a brief statement left the door just halfway open for a possible seventh season at the helm.

Openly fed up with what he calls a "definite trend toward dirty football" in the National Football League and reportedly on the lookout for more security than the Lions want to offer, Parker, 43, parried one question after another at a news conference today after saying simply:

"I did not appear before the board today to ask for a renewal of my contract and I have not asked President Anderson for a renewal of my contract."

Expires Dec. 31
The board of directors met in near full force earlier to discuss Parker's contract, which expires Dec. 31. President Edwin J. Anderson said the coach did not appear at the meeting, but that the club made him an offer.

The news conference called hurriedly after the board meeting left nearly everyone—except possibly Anderson and Parker—thoroughly confused.

Could Be Persuaded
One source close to the club said Parker—though bitter about the rough tactics in the NFL—could be persuaded to stay on with a raise in pay and a multiple-year contract. But Parker wouldn't discuss it.

"My contract expires on Dec. 31 and that is how I am operating as of now."

That appeared to open the way for possible negotiations. Anderson said there was a "disagreement about terms" He didn't discuss one report that there is a difference of opinion among board members about offering more than a one-year contract.

Stop Taking MOs For Pro Clash

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—The New York football Giants stopped taking mail orders today for the National Football League championship game at Yankee Stadium Dec. 29 between the Giants and the Chicago Bears.

The Giants said, however, that an exception would be made for season subscribers whose regular seats will be held until Monday.

A sellout crowd of 70,000 is virtually assured. Tickets are still being sold at the Giants' office.

Yankees Ink Berra, Ford To '57 Pact

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—The New York Yankees got off to a flying start today on the expensive job of satisfying their world champions by signing Yogi Berra and Whitey Ford, their top battery, to 1957 contracts.

The double signing was held in a private dining room at Yankee Stadium with TV cameras blinking and champagne corps popping.

As usual, no salary figures were announced. George Weiss, Yankee general manager, dodged adroitly when the writers tried to pin him down on any financial details.

"Would you say Yogi is the highest paid Yankee since Joe DiMaggio?" Weiss was asked.

"Well, we don't have all our players signed yet," he answered. Further questions ran up against the same brick wall.

Say $53,000
A year ago it was reported Berra received $50,000, making him the highest paid catcher in baseball. Subsequent stories boosted the figure to $53,000. Probably a good guess on his new contract is $58,000 although nobody will know for sure except the principles and the income tax people.

In the history of the Yankees, only DiMaggio's $100,000 and Babe Ruth's $80,000 have been publicized as larger than Berra's reported salary.

Asked about his contract, Berra merely shrugged his shoulders, grinned and said, "I'm satisfied."

Both "Good Raises"
Weiss said earlier both Berra and Ford received "good" raises. Ford, top pitcher in the American League in both winning percentage, 19-6 for '56, and earned run average with 2.47, usually holds out until spring training time. Estimates of his last year's salary ranged from $25,000 to $30,000 and guesses on the '57 figure reach $35,000.

The handsome lefthander said he had no intentions of following the "no windup" pitching delivery used by teammates Don Larsen and Bob Turley in the Series.

Golfer Named Top Woman Athlete

TORONTO, Dec. 20 (AP)—Marlene Stewart, an amazing mite with an awesome putter, is Canada's outstanding woman athlete of 1956.

A year's career of triumph in eight golf tournaments—climaxing with victory in the United States Women's Amateur championship—won her the recognition by the country's sports editors and sports casters in the 22nd annual Canadian press year-end sports poll.

Bel Second
Marilyn Bell, the indomitable distance swimmer who in August added the 18-mile Juan de Fuca Strait to her list of conquests, placed second.

Texas Slaps Ban On Aragon For Dive Fix

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 20 (AP)—State Boxing Commissioner H. E. Morgan slapped an indefinite suspension today on third-ranked welterweight Art Aragon for trying to fix a fight in San Antonio, Tex.

Richard Goldstein, boxing buddy of Aragon from Los Angeles, drew a 30-day suspension.

Under National Boxing Assn. rules, both fighters are automatically suspended in all states except New York.

"It's another case of a big-time fighter not wanting to take a chance of being whipped by a little-time fighter," Morgan told The Associated Press.

Testifies
Goldstein testified at an investigation in San Antonio yesterday that he was offered $500 and threatened with death if he didn't take a "dive"—fake losing the fight—in the third round.

Aragon denied any deal with Goldstein.

Morgan's stiff punishment came following a grand jury investigation and lie detector tests taken voluntarily by both fighters.

"We concluded that arrangements were made in Los Angeles between these two boys for Goldstein to take a dive," Morgan said. "I don't think there is any doubt but that is what happened."

Official Ban
The official suspension notice to Aragon said he was losing his license "because of your having arranged with your opponent that he, your opponent, would take a dive in the third or fourth round."

The scheduled bout Tuesday was called off when a commission doctor said Aragon had a reddened throat and a slight fever.

'Still' Is Pacing Nation's Scorers

ALTHOUGH Wilt Chamberlain's scoring average has been dropping steadily since his 52-point spree in his first varsity basketball game, the seven-foot Kansas sophomore still tops the National Collegiate A.A. major college scoring list.

And right behind him is Columbia's Chet Forte, a player who in his way is just as amazing as Wilt the Silt.

NCAA Service Bureau statistics, which include games of last Saturday, today showed an average for Chamberlain of 39.5 points in four games. Forte, who is only 5-9 and rated as a "midget" among the big boys who play basketball, has a 30.4 point average for five games.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—Tony DeMarco, the former welterweight champ who thought he won "looking lousy" in his first match with Mexico's Gaspar Ortega hopes to make the victory official in tomorrow night's rematch at Madison Square Garden.

Ortega took a split decision over the Bostonian in their Nov. 23 bout at the Garden with Referee Al Berl voting 6-3-1 and Judge Jack Gordon 5-4-1 for Ortega. The other judge, Frank Forbes, had DeMarco on top 6-4.

the Hillers. Not since the 1954-55 season has a Fountain Hill team dropped a regular league duel.

Last year, for example, the Hillers swept through 16 straight L-N foes without a setback and already this season have knocked off two more.

Fountain Hill, winners of the circuit crown in '54-'55 as well as last season, also is defending PIAA Class B basketball champions. Two years ago the Hillers went into the "B" finals before bowing out.

Lead Hillers

Led by pair of scoring phenoms in Karol (Moore) Strelecki and Butch Kosman, Fountain Hill will bring an over-all record into the Cavaliers' fair of 36-wins and two losses, accumulated in only 13 months of play.

Schoonover, who saw his charges upset Phillipsburg High Tuesday night, has been working hard the past few days in an attempt to get a more diversified attack moving.

In the early goings it has been

Move Wall

To provide the room required, this also entails moving approximately 25 feet of the wall on the north side of the building 18 inches and extending 40 feet of the rear wall 12 feet.

The schedule calls for the resumption of bowing at the center Jan. 1. Work on moving the alleys is to be completed by Christmas and the installation of the pin-spotters will be started the next day.

Attend School

In the interim, Anthony Dell'Alba, co-proprietor of the center, and Samuel Singleton are attending an TME service school at Clifton, N. J., to learn the technique needed for maintaining and repairing the automatic machinery.

Best 'Eyes

St. John's of Brooklyn, another team that has been hitting better than 90 points a game, has the best shooting average from the floor, .492 to .485 for Ohio U. Oklahoma A&M and Clemson both have compiled .784 percentages from the free throw line.

Dartmouth leads in recovering rebounds with a .882 percentage with Miami of Ohio and Ohio U. second and third, Tulane has committed the fewest personal fouls, 35 in three games at an 11.7 average, and Kent State the most, 111 in four games for 27.8.

The club also planned a one-day trip to Bellefonte, N. Y., and an outdoor ice skating picnic in the near future.

Roberts disclosed that the club has been invited to Big Boulder at Split Rock Lodge where a snow-making machine has been erected to provide a full schedule of skiing. The Blue Ridge Club will take part in a "Ski Bug" at Split Rock Jan. 17.

Also shown were movies of the National Ski Championships of 1956 at Squaw Valley, and the 1955 national championships held at Stevens Pass.

Blue Ridge Ski Group Makes Plans

BANGOR—Blue Ridge Ski Club reviewed the coming season's agenda Wednesday night during a meeting in the Second Ward Fire Co. Hall, Bangor.

Vernon Roberts, president, reported a New Year's trip to Stowe, Vt., a proposed bus trip next month to Vermont, of New York State, and a week's ski vacation in Canada in February or March, will be reviewed.

Trippi Agrees With Detroit On Layne 'KO'

ATLANTA, Dec. 20 (AP)—Professional football coach Charlie Trippi said today he agrees "100 per cent" with the Detroit Lions' charge that end Ed Meadows of the Chicago Bears deliberately tried to knock quarterback Bobby Layne out of a game.

"After playing them (the Bears) the week before, I know what (Detroit Coach Buddy) Parker says must be true. That Meadows tried to do the same thing to our quarterback when we played them."

Not Pop Off

"I played under Buddy Parker for three years, and he's a very quiet, mild-mannered man. He doesn't pop off unless he has something to say. I agree with Buddy 100 per cent on this thing."

Trippi, on the All-America team while playing with Georgia in 1946, is backfield coach with the Chicago Cardinals.

He made his remarks in a telephone interview with the Atlanta Constitution from his home in Athens, Ga.

Trippi wouldn't comment himself on Parker's charge that George Halas, owner of the Bears and George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington professional team, "run" the National Football League. But he did say that "the Bears seem to get the benefit of the doubt from the officials all the time."

Date Set For Opening Of 'Bundle Drive'

NEWFOUNDLAND — Interest among the students of Greene-Dreher-Sterling Joint School is increasing as plans for the "Bundle Drive" of the Save The Children Federation are completed.

Sponsored by the Student Council under the leadership of Wallace Wilder, the drive will begin on Jan. 7, and will continue through the week.

"Our children will be collecting used clothing for ragged little boys and girls after school," Supervising Principal Leland Cramer announced. "This is our contribution to the Save The Children Federation Bundle Drive."

In explaining the drive, he noted that the Federation is an international agency helping youngsters both in this country and overseas. The Bundle Drives have been held for the past 14 years in schools throughout the United States.

Amount

Last year, Bundle Drives amassed more than 800 tons of clothing.

Children's clothing is especially wanted, but infant and adult wear will also be welcomed. Cramer urges donations of long-sleeved sweaters, shirts, pants, dungarees, overalls, hats, knit caps, cotton dresses, underwear socks, pajamas, cloth coats, sheets, blankets, diapers, baby shirts, booties, rubbers, overshoes, and work shoes.

Donations must be clean, wearable, and mended if necessary.

Gilpin Named To Seventh Board Term

NEWFOUNDLAND — Veitlan School Director Homer Gilpin, who has served on the local board for the past 37 years, was re-elected for the seventh term as president of the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Joint School Board this week. Harold Lee, Sterling, was re-named vice president.

Gilpin was elected first in November, 1919. He was treasurer for 27 years, and in 1950, succeeded the late Frank A. Madden as president.

Consolidation

In 1919, the Dreher Township School was consolidated with Greene Township at the secondary school level, and seven years later, complete consolidation was affected. A new building was erected, and 15 one-room schoolhouses in the two townships were closed.

In 1947, Lehigh Township closed the Gouldsboro High School and sent the secondary school students to Greene-Dreher on a tuition basis. In 1951, Sterling Township came into the jointure, and Greene-Dreher-Sterling Joint School was the result.

The 15-man board of directors proved to be a hard-working unit which solved problems posed by the increased enrollment.

The local president is a member of the Wayne County Board of School Directors, serving as vice president, and is a member of the Legislative Committee of the State School Directors.

Your Horoscope Today

By FRANCIS DRAKE

FOR FRIDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1956
March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Much happier influences make your outlook generally brighter than it has been for some time. Delicate matters, hard work and the solution of difficult problems equally hampered. Your mentality should be very keen.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—No matter what your occupation or business (if honorable) you can make headway on this generous day. Don't be narrow-minded and do keep with fast-moving events. Pray, work.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—Mental alertness, intuition and imagination should be at a peak now, which should be helpful in whatever your duties. There's ample room for making needed improvements, expanding sensibly, bettering your state generally.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Dare the new if it shows merit. Seek clients, customers, don't hesitate to promote your own capabilities and products. Teachers, students, clerks, bookkeepers, salesmen—women favored.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Benefit respects for achievement, fresh gains, new benefits. There's no need to force issues. And don't try more than you can manage sensibly. Your Sun's position suggests that you make time count.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Many lines of endeavor, the professions, study, intricate matters, research and activities requiring hard work and smart planning are under very auspicious rays. Don't fear new undertakings, methods, tools, etc.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Be your good natured self now so that you may reap the benefits, advancement and friendships possible. Cooperate where, when you should for good causes, sound achievement. A fine day.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio)

Profits, some credits can be obtained on this generous, stimulating day through clever management of affairs and intelligent dealings with all. Steady, consistent effort counts.

November 24 to December 21 (Sagittarius)—Strong influences sail on all kinds of endeavor. Finances, business ventures, unskilled and skilled labor, students, outdoor activities under fine rays. Be encouraged.

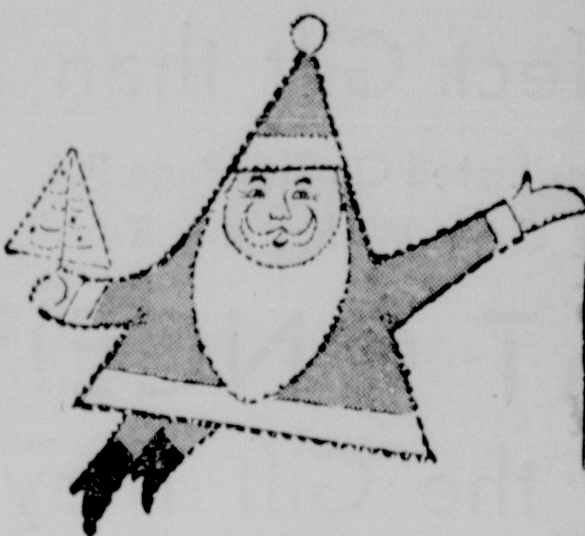

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)—Your future is among the planets well inspected now. It should be a fruitful period. Household tasks equally honored with social activities. Be ambitious.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)—While the day is promising, don't be over-confident or careless. Examine documents, contracts well. You may have to sign, so consult with family. Use tact in weighty matters.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)—Your Neptune favorably situated. You can, should, have a pleasant as well as a progressive day, marked by new interests, vigorous action. Furtherance of sound ideas sponsored. Good friends can help.

YOU BORN TODAY are active, versatile, buoyant, trustworthy, instantly enterprising, progressive, generous, soundly ambitious. Your outspoken frankness is to be admired, but at the same time you must be diplomatic so as not to offend. And don't be over-zealous lest you spoil chances. Stop to consider outcomes, deliberate ways and means best suited to what you are doing; don't hesitate to consult with wise heads—in doubt. You like travel and may do well with employment that requires it. Many great musicians, writers, artists and business executives were born in this sector.

Birthdate: Benj. Disraeli, Brit. statesman, novelist; A. Payson Terhune, author.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. Numerical puzzle designed to spell out your future. Count the letters in your first name.
